FINLEY WROTE RAILWAY BOARD; HANSON DIDN'T

Information Was Asked as to Ownership of Central of Georgia.

ORDER WENT WITH LETTER; INTEREST IN THE OUTCOME

Since President Hanson Seems to Have Ignored the Order of the Commission Something Likely May Result—Finley Letter Not Yet Read.

President W. W. Finley, of the Southern railroad, has written a five-page typewritten letter to the railroad commission of Georgia, in response to a request sent out by that body inquiring into the ownership of the Central of Georgia railroad, alleged to have been recently sold by the Southern and now in the possession of E. H. Harriman.

What this letter contains, the commission declines to give out. Although the letter was received in the office of the commission on the 9th of the month, it has not been read by the commission, and both Chairman McLendon and Vice Chairman Hillyer state that it is a matter to be discussed by the entire commission, and decline to take it up and give it out before the entire board meets, which will probably be on Monday.

At the same time President J. F. Hanson, of the Central of Georgia, was requested to write the commission what he knew of the sale of this road, and in both instances it was requested that the replies be in the office of the commission "on or before November 15."

The answer from the president of the Southern was received before the time limit, but up to last night it was stated that no reply had been received from President Hanson of the Central.

Inasmuch as the letter requesting this information was accompanied by an order issued by the commission, considerable surmise is resulting as to what action the commission will take in regard to this seeming ignoring of a request from the commission.

It is not believed that the long letter from the Southern will prove very enlightening in regard to the present ownership of the road in question.

RHODES PLANS BIG BUILDING ON MARIETTA

Forty-Two Thousand Dollars Paid for Seventy-Nine-Foot Frontage.

TWO AGED LANDMARKS WILL BE TORN AWAY

Old Todd Residence and the Johnson House, Now Occupied by the Salvation Army, to Give Room for the New Improvement.

For the sum of $42,000 A. G. Rhodes has bought a frontage of 79 feet on Marietta street, between North Forsyth and Spring streets, opposite the Gas and Electric building and upon which he will erect an eight-story business building.

By the consummation of this sale two historic landmarks will pass away.

The purchase represents a dual land deal. The first was the purchase of the old Todd home, occupied for so many years by Dr. J. Scott Todd. This property had a frontage of 49 feet on Marietta street and ran back a distance of 210 feet to the Western and Atlantic tracks.

The other was the purchase of the Johnson house, with a frontage of 30 feet, for which $14,000 was paid to the Travelers' Insurance Company. The last named property is now being occupied by the Salvation Army, which has a lease upon it until next September.

In speaking of the purchase, Mr. Rhodes said:

"I am going to build an eight-story business house upon the sites bought by me. The building will rest with two floors beneath the sidewalk, thus making the first floor even with the railroad tracks and six stories above the street level. I intend to make this a handsome building. The present lessees will occupy the buildings until next September."

Opposite the custom house, at the terminus of the Marietta interurban line and in the heart of the city, this is one of the most central sales recorded in the city recently.

CUT IN WAGES DENIED BY LEVIN

Western Union Superintendent Talks of Report.

SURPRISED AT THE STORY.

Dispatch from Mobile Says That the Western Union and Postal Officials Held Conference and Decided on Ten Per Cent Cut.

To a representative of The Constitution early this morning J. Levin general superintendent of the Western Union and the highest official of that company in the south, denied the report that the Western Union had gone into agreement with the Postal to cut wages of employees 10 per cent, as declared in a dispatch from Mobile, and was plainly surprised at the story.

"The Western Union has made no cut, and is not even contemplating a change from the present wages paid employees," said he. "Our men have been loyal to us, and the company has no intention of making reductions. I don't understand how the report could have originated. I know, however, that there is no truth in it, for I have charge in the south and would have had to issue the order in this section. There are no other officials in the south authorized to reduce wages.

Agree on Cut in Wages.

Mobile, Ala., November 15.—Announcement is made tonight that both the Postal and Western Union telegraph companies have instituted a cut of ten per cent in wages of all employees effective today. The claim is advanced that both companies have acted in concert in all offices throughout the country in taking this action.

Three high officials of the Postal Telegraph Company and General Superintendent H. Waterbury, of New York, representing the Western Union company, held a conference in this city last night. The cut of today is claimed to have been the result of an agreement at this conference.

GATHERING SPECIMENS FOR THE FAIR ON WHEELS

Professor Johnson Gets Specimens of Sea Island Cotton at Statesboro.

Statesboro, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—Professor Johnson, of the state university, has been in Statesboro for two days. He came for the purpose of getting specimens of the products of this county. It is said that the railroads have given the state agricultural society a special train, and the best specimens of products obtainable will be gathered from the state for the purpose of having an exposition on wheels. A tour will be made of the entire state.

Professor Johnson said he had met with much success here, getting some very fine specimens of sea island cotton, for which this county is noted, and many fine specimens of grain. He came to Statesboro from Savannah, where he says he also met with success.

"I am very much pleased with your section," said Professor Johnson. "After seeing the magnificent display Bulloch county has been sending to the Atlanta fairs, I was convinced that this was the place for me to come to get fine specimens. We are getting everything in good shape, and hope to start out on our tour some time next month.

"We will stop at every place where the people manifest sufficient interest in our endeavor. We will have with us specimens of all the products of Georgia, and some of the best experts of the country to give lectures on them."

Professor Johnson talked interestingly of the exposition on wheels, and said Statesboro would certainly be paid a visit. He left today.

KING'S DAUGHTERS MEET IN ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Two Hundred Ladies Are Expected to Be in Attendance at the Vicksburg Meeting.

Vicksburg, Miss., November 15.—The ninth annual conference of the International Order of King's Daughters convened in Vicksburg today. Delegates are present from many points. The local circles have arranged to entertain the visiting ladies, over a hundred private homes having agreed to receive the ladies as guests.

The conference is a deliberative and not a legislative body, as legislation is enacted at the New York council.

Two hundred ladies are expected to be in attendance. The sessions will last until Tuesday next. Mrs. Robert J. Reed, of Wheeling, W. Va., is the chairman of the conference.

YOUNG MAN WAS DROWNED

The Flume, a Temporary Wooden Affair, Gave Way.

Talladega, Ala., November 15.—(Special.)—Bennett L. Chambers, a member of a leading family, was drowned this afternoon at the plant of the Alabama Power Development Company, on Choccolocco creek, 8 miles north of the city. Young Chambers was in the employ of the power company, and had been engaged in some work with other men on the flume. The flume was only a temporary wooden affair, and when the water was turned in, it gave way.

The young man was struck by a piece of timber, and it is supposed that this disabled him and prevented him from saving himself. Two other men who were standing near him escaped from the water. Young Chambers had barely passed his majority. He was a son of the late George W. Chambers, who was the developer and for some time owner of the plant where the young man was killed this afternoon.

Special Session Is Called.

Sacramento, Cal., November 15.—Governor Gillette today issued a proclamation calling a special session of the legislature to consider measures in connection with the money stringency.

FISH WRITES LETTER TO THE I. C. HOLDERS

No Effort to Dissolve the Injunction of Securities Company.

SAYS HARRIMAN IS TRYING TO WRECK ROAD

Says He and His Colleagues Will Do All in Their Power to Preserve the Integrity of the Illinois Central Railroad.

New York, November 15.—Stuyvesant Fish has addressed a letter to the stockholders of the Illinois Central Railway Company regarding the adjourned meeting of the company set for December 18. After revewing the contest at the last meeting, Mr. Fish says in part:

"It is significant that up to this date no effort has been made by the Union Pacific to dissolve the injunction as to its holding or that of the Railroad Securities Company, although the Mutual Life Insurance Company, with a relatively unimportant holding of only 5,500 shares has asked to be relieved of the restraint. This motion does not involve the main issue, as the case of the Mutual Life turns upon fundamentally different questions of law and of fact from those involved in the cases of the Union Pacific and the Railroad Securities Company.

"The contest now being waged is for the purpose of ousting me from the board of directors, of which I have been a member for thirty years, and of electing four directors dominated by E. H. Harriman, thus giving to him, with the Union Pacific directors and their adherents already in the board the absolute and permentnt control not only of the policies of the Illinois Central, but also of its physical and financial assets and possibilities for all time.

Harriman Trying to Engulf Road.

"My colleagues, Mr. Beach and Mr. Cutting, stand with me for the integrity and independence of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, untrammelled by any affiliations with or control of other railroads. Mr. Harriman stands for the engulfing of our company in the wide control by him of the transportation in this country through the instrumentality of the Union Pacific company. To this end he caused the company to buy from himself and his associates nearly 30 per cent (29.59) per cent of the stock of the Illinois Central, an amount sufficient, according to the sworn testimony of Mr. Otto Kuhn, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the fiscal agents of the Union Pacific, to enable the holder to 'exercise a dominating influence' in the affairs of a railroad company whose stock is as widely scattered as that of the Illinois Central. What Mr. Harriman's purposes and practices are is shown in the report of the interstate commerce commission of the United States, No. 943, a copy of which is enclosed, and which every stockholder should read before giving his proxy.

"Since the adjournment of the stockholders' meeting, A. G. Hackstaff, as secretary of the Illinois Central railroad, has sent out an official circular to the stockholders soliciting their proxies for himself and for J. T. Harahan. These gentlemen are known adherents and followers of Mr. Harriman. A proxy to them is in effect a proxy to him which, through the power of substitution inserted in their form of proxy, may by them be made in fact a proxy to Mr. Harriman.

Hoped to Defer Elections.

"As it may be claimed that the proxies heretofore given to Mr. Beach, Mr. Cutting and myself, in terms, expire on December 31, 1907, and an attempt made to prolong the annual meeting of stockholders for the years 1907 and 1908, and thereby defer the selection of the directors, the enclosed proxy has been drawn to cover all possible adjournments of that meeting.

"My colleagues and I will continue our efforts to maintain the integrity and independence of the Illinois Central Railroad Company to prevent its absorption by interests alien to those of its stockholders and patrons, to prevent its relegation to other railroads dominating it, and to preserve for its proprietors the benefits of its present prosperity and future boundless possibilities."

OPENING GUN IN CAMPAIGN

E. K. Overstreet Will Make Speech Monday at Sylvania.

Savannah, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—The opening gun for the campaign for congress from the first district will be fired by E. K. Overstreet, state senator and candidate for the democratic nomination, at Sylvania, on Monday. Mr. Overstree will then announce the principles upon which he will make the race. Opposing him will be a formidable host, and a battle royal is looked for. Other candidates are J. W. Overstreet, cousin of E. K., who served two months in the last congress to fill the unexpired term of the late Rufus E. Lester; W. W. Sheppard, who tied A. L. Brannen for the nomination and had to retire, with Brannen, when Congressman Charles G. Edwards was run in as a dark horse; Congressman Edwards, who wants to succeed himself in congress, and William Clifton, the "Warhorse of McIntosh."

Senator Overstreet said here today that it is his purpose to run on a platform that declares for prohibition, negro disfranchisement and legislation to regulate the railroads. The candidate does not lose sight of Savannah, for he also says he will advocate the deepening of this city's harbor.

ABSURD RUMORS AFLOAT REGARDING MORGAN LOAN

New York Papers Print Ridiculous Reports About the Purposed $40,000,000 Shipment of Morgan & Co.

Paris, November 14.—Distorted rumors concerning the character of the negotiations conducted by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. with the bank of France with the view to obtain betweeen $20,000,000 and $40,000,000 in gold for direct shipment to New York, which, after having beee in progress since last week, were definitely broken off yesterday, have leaked out here, and the newspapers today are printing the most ridiculous reports on the subject. One of the news agencies tries to make it appear that the United States government was seeking gold for the purpose of filling its war chest in anticipation of hostilities with Japan. This agency announced that a United States government short term loan was imminent and that Japan had provided against its admission to the Paris bourse, believing "that the alleged dearth of gold in the United States is a bluff and that the crisis was deliberately premeditated in order to permit America to build up its war treasury."

WATTERSON DISLIKES W. J. BRYAN'S ATTITUDE

Had Hoped He Would Quit "Dog in the Manger" Manner and Stand Aside for Others.

Boone, Iowa, November 15.—Colonel Henry Watterson, asked today by the Associated Press for his opinion on William Jennings Bryan's tentative acceptance of the democratic presidential nomination, declared that he had labored with Bryan to have him decline the nomination and to quit his "dog in the manger" attitude. Colonel Watterson realized that Bryan had it in his power to demand the leadership of the democratic party in 1908 or "defeat any other candidate by knifing him as he did Parker."

Bryan's acceptance is no more than he expected, however, greatly as he regretted the action, because he thought Bryan could no longer create enthusiasm as he had done before the people too many times.

Asked about the assertion often made as to who the next president would be, Roosevelt or Bryan, Colonel Watterson said that the nomination of Roosevelt was all Bryan supporters wanted, because they could then go to to the people on the third term slogan. Bryan could carry New England in such a campaign, he thought. Roosevelt, by such an act, would Mexicanize this government, holding himself as greater than Washington.

As for himself, much as he disliked to do so, Colonel Watterson would vote for Bryan against Roosevelt in such a dilemma. He believed, however, that Roosevelt would decline another nomination, as he had nothing to gain and the republican party had many men of presidential calibre. He mentioned especially Taft, Hughes and Crane of Massachusetts. He said Senator Crane would make a strong man on the argument that New England had had not a president for a long time.

GEORGIA ROAD FACES STRIKE

Brotherhood Asks Reinstatement of Discharged Engineer.

MAY INVOLVE OTHER ROADS

Statement Made by Assistant Grand Commander Burgess—He Says 60,000 Men Are Behind the Controversy, Also Unlimited Amount of Money.

Augusta, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—Assistant Grand Commander A. Burgess, stated tonight that a general vote was taken by the engineers on the proposition to strike on the Georgia road unless Engineer O. H. Blasingame is reinstated, and that it is the first vote in the history of the organization where it is absolutely unanimous to strike. When the strike will becalled he declines to say, but says it will not be within eighteen hours from 9 o'clock last night.

Tried to Treat With Road.

Mr. Burgess says, "Yes, the engineers are going to strike, unless the Georgia railroad does what we have asked them to do. We have been here ten days trying to treat with the railroad, but they have not met us. Yes, it seems an assured fact that the engineers will certainly strike.

"You want to know when we will strike? I will not tell you that. Why, there are men in Augusta who would give $50,000 to know just when we will strike, but I am not going to say.

"You can tell the public that we will not strike within the next eighteen hours. (The conversation took place at 9 o'clock p. m.) But whether it will be within the next twenty, twenty-four or thirty-six hours—well, I cannot say.

Cause of Controversy.

"One of our members has been unjustly taken off his run, for no cause whatsoever. We do not ask for any more money; there is not a dollar involved, we ask only for the reinstatement of this engineer, and full payment for the loss of his time.

"There are about 60,000 men and an unlimited amount of money behind the controversy."

"Will the trouble extend to any other road, or will it be confined to the Georgia railroad?"

"This case is like getting your foot hurt," said Mr. Burgess. "If you get it cut off, and the wound gets well, you are all right. If gangreen sets in and it is not cut off, the gangreen spreads to other portions of your body, and gradually those other parts sluff off. As to the future I cannot say."

STATION AT STATESBORO.

Corn and Cotton Experiment Station to Be Established.

Statesboro, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—A letter received here last night from the agricultural department at Washington officially confirms the action of the government expert who visited this place some time ago and recommended that a corn and cotton experiment station be established here.

The station is to be conducted by experts sent here from the United States department of agriculture. It is to be located on a part of the First District Agricultural school, about one mile from town.

DR. BROWNE OUT ON $5,000 BOND

Musician Who Fired at Father Gunn Is Released.

WILL REMAIN IN ATLANTA

His Attorney Declares That Dr. Browne Will Resume His Musical Work in This City—Gives Up Trip He Had Planned.

Dr. J. Lewis Browne, the musician and composer who has been confined in the Tower for the past nine days, was released yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, J. Frank Beck giving bond for $5,000 to Sheriff John W. Nelms.

Dr. Browne left the Fulton county jail immediately after the signing of the bond, and went to the office of his attorney, Burton Smith, accompanied by Mr. Beck. He will remain in the city permanently, so his attorney states, and resume his work in musical lines.

On Wednesday night, November 6, Dr. Browne was arrested by the police for firing his pistol wildly around and at Father Gunn, of the Sacred Heart church. The day after the arrest Father Gunn swore out a peace warrant against Dr. Browne, and he was placed in the Tower in default of a $5,000 bond. During his stay in the jail the musician was treated with the greatest courtesy, and given many privileges, due to his good conduct while there.

Dr. Browne will be under the $5,000 bond until the end of this term of the superior court, which will be the latter part of December. He will be at that time released from the bond, but Father Gunn can, if Dr. Browne breaks the peace in the meantime, ask the court to renew the bond, which would necessitate further imprisonment of the musician in case he could not give bond a second time.

The report that Dr. Browne was going to leave Atlanta seems to have got out from the fact that Dr. Browne had intended leaving before he became involved in the present difficulties, for a brief resting period, but this has been abandoned for the time being.

FINE LECTURE BY DR. LEE

His Lecture at the Brenau Auditorium Much Enjoyed.

Brenau Conservatory, Gainesville, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—One of the finest lectures heard here in years was that of Dr. James W. Lee, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, Atlanta, at Brenau auditorium under the auspices of the First Methodist Sunday school. His theme was "The Advantage of Being Knocked Down and the Benefits of Picking One's Self Up Again."

A deep thinker, essentially an idealist and a philosopher, widely traveled, and conversant with history and science, his address was an inspiration to better and higher things. He drew pictures of cities and nations which have, through adversity and untoward circumstances, risen far above the other cities, and nations which have enjoyed natural advantages unsurpassed. He applied the rule to human life, and showed in original and unique manner the blessings of the effort to recover from disasters and to overcome obstacles.

STATE RESTS BRADLEY CASE; HOT EVIDENCE

Mrs. Bradley Made Repeated Efforts to Kill Senator Brown.

STATE DID NOT INSIST ON HER CONFESSION

Detective Grant Gives Some Important Testimony in Regard to Previous Efforts to Kill Her Lover—Did Not Act on Impulse.

Washington, November 15.—That the defense of Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, on trial in criminal court No. 1 on the charge of murdering former United States Senator Brown, would be insanity was made evident beyond question by the preliminary statement made to the court today by her attorney, Mr. Hoover.

The prosecution consumed the entire forenoon in concluding the examination of its witnesses in chief to prove the facts of the killing, and when it rested the case, Mr. Hoover followed with his preliminary outline of the case for the defense.

He detailed the principal events of Mrs. Bradley's life and entered minutely into the circumstances of her intimacy with Brown, saying that it would be proved that she was completely under his domination and forecasting testimony which would be adduced to show that she was mentally irresponsible when she fired the fatal shot. He also said it would be shown that Mr. Brown had performed more than one criminal act upon her with his own hands, and that he had presented her with the pistol with which she killed him, telling her that she should use it upon his wife if she gave her trouble. According to Mr. Hoover's statement, it also will be shown that there is a taint of insanity in Mrs Bradley's family.

The testimony presented today by the prosecution was all intended to show premeditation on the part of Mrs. Bradley in killing Senator Brown. It was reported that she had told members of the police force in this city immediately after her arrest that she had not acted upon any sudden impulse, and one witness from Salt Lake City was introduced to testify to the circumstances that she had told him some six months before the tragedy that she intended to kill Mr. Brown if he did not legitimatize her children by marrying her. Another witness from that city told of two efforts by Mrs. Bradley to invade Brown's house, supposedly with hostile intent. Max Brown, the son of the dead senator, was on the stand for a few moments during the day.

The court adjourned at 2 o'clock until next Monday. It is understood that when the trial is resumed the state will stubbornly antagonize Mrs. Bradley's plea of insanity and that much rebutting testimony will be introduced.

FOR ROBBING METERS TWO MEN BOUND OVER

Houses in different parts of the city have been entered during the past two weeks, slot gas meters robbed, and other articles of value stolen.

Though if the gas light people had complained, and though many houses had been entered in the day and the meters broken open and robbed, no trace leading to the arrest and conviction of the robbers was found until Officers Pfarr and Wiley, after watching some suspicious characters on Summit street a few days ago, arrested two men who gave their names as C. D. Gaines and C. O. Lampkin, and said they were painters. After having worked on the case for several days the officers brought it to trial yesterday afternoon before Judge Broyles. The men at the time of their arrest had on them tools, which could be used for breaking into the meters, and Gaines had the slot part of a meter. This meter slot fitted a broken one at a vacant house on Summit street near the time and place of the capture of the men. On further investigation by the officers it was found that the men were accustomed to enter a house, and if accosted by any one in the house to ask to see the meter. It being thought that they were men from the gas company they would be admitted, and would rob the meter which they had presumably come to read. A negro girl, who is maid at a boarding house on Forsyth street, identified the men as men who had, in such a manner, robbed the meters of her mistress some time since. A little boy also picked Lampkin out of a crowd of prisoners as having, in a like manner, robbed the meter of his father.

Though Lampkin stubbornly held out that he knew nothing of the affair, Gaines confessed that he had accompanied Lampkin on such trips, and acknowledged that the meters had been robbed in this manner. It was testified to by witnesses that Gaines had been led into the trouble by Lampkin. Both men were bound over, the bond of Lampkin being $500, while that of Gaines was fixed at $200.

Officers Pharr and Wiley also assert that they have evidence to convict the men of burglary in two other cases. One of these burglaries was committed at 72 Bedford place, and the other at 92 Summit street.

121,000 POPULATION FOR ATLANTA IN 1908

Atlanta is the home of 121,000 people, a gain of at least 5,000 over last year, according to the figures compiled by Joseph W. Hill, publisher of the new city directory for 1908. In addition to these figures, the directory will show that Atlanta suburbs will total the Atlanta population at 168,000, a clear gain of over 10,000 over the figures for the 1907 directory. The gain in the suburbs this year kept pace with that of the city.

The directory enumerators kept track, too, of the new houses put up since the old directory was issued, and this shows a total of 2,100. The number of "For Rent" signs were also enumerated, and these have dropped for this year from last down to 400, as compared to 750 last year.

Mr. Hill has kept special track of saloon property to be vacated on the 1st of January, and states that a majority of these have already been rented to other parties, and the owners stated that the others would be rented in the next thirty days.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

TWENTY HURT IN EXPLOSION

Pittsburg, Pa., November 15.—About twenty-five persons were injured today, two fatally, and dwelling house was torn to pieces, when an explosion of natural gas occurred in a house located at No. 103 Elm street, this city. In the fire which followed two firemen were severely burned.

Fatally injured:

Mrs. Sarah H. Crossman, blown through the roof.

Jacob Bergerman, blown through the roof.

Seriously injured: Three members of the Crossman family, three members of the Moidel family, which also occupied the house, and Theo Bulner, a guest of the Crossmans.

About fourteen other persons in the neighborhood received injuries when windows in their homes were shattered by the concussion and plaster fell upon them. Apparently gas had been leaking in a kitchen stove all night. Early today when a match was struck in the lower portion of the house to light the stove there was a terrific explosion. The house was torn to pieces. The roof was blown high into the air and the front and rear of the dwelling collapsed. Mrs. Grossman and Jacob Bergerman, a boarder, apparently received the full force of the explosion, both being blown from their beds through the roof.

They were fatally injured by the subsequent fall of fire. Other members of the Grossman and Moidel families, both of which occupied the house, were thrown from bed by the concussion and severely injured.

WORK FOR THE CANAL TO BE ACTIVELY PUSHED

President Pope, of the chamber of commerce; C. E. Caverly, chairman of the Atlanta canal committee, and Colonel C. P. Goodyear, of Brunswick, will attend the National Rivers and Harbors convention, in Washington, December 4, 5 and 6, to promote the interest of the proposed canal, which, if dug, will touch this city.

The mayor and council will also be asked to send a representation.

The canal in question is one which will connect the Tennessee, Coosa and Oemulgee rivers, and has been declared feasible by experts. As surveyed the waterway will be dug from near Guntersville, Ala., on the Tennessee river, from there to the Coosa at Rome, and following the course of the Etowah, come by Atlanta and tap the Ocomulgee at Macon, thus connecting the waters of the Mississippi valley with those of the Atlantic ocean.

While the canal has been surveyed by a number of engineers, Senator Bacon, of Georgia, has introduced a bill calling for a new survey, and this will probably be passed.

More than one hundred years ago Albert Gallatin, of Tennessee, made the initial survey, and later Colonel Barnard, who was an engineer in Napoleon's army, but after the surrender at Waterloo came to this country in the employ of the government, made another survey, and both of these were deemed practicable.

It is believed that the canal will be worth more to the south than several railways. Its proposed course is 1,400 miles in length.

SUICIDE VERDICT IS NOT ACCEPTED

Nature of Barney's Wound Precludes Such Possibility.

WAS NOT DEEPLY INVOLVED

He Owed Only $375,000, and His Assets Were Considerably Over $2,000,000 — Many Different Theories Are Advanced for His Death.

New York, November 15.—Mortally wounded by his own hand, Charles Tracy Barney summoned his family and lawyers to his bedside, and after calmly reviewing his business and private affairs and giving minute expression of his wishes in certain matters, dictated and signed a will in which his wife was made the principal beneficiary. This matter disposed of, he submitted with resignation to the operation through which his physicians had hoped to save his life.

A half hour after the lawyers withdrew the former head of the Knickerbocker Trust Company was dead.

This became known today through a statement made by Albert S. Milbank, of the law firm of Masten & Nichols, Mr. Barney's personal attorneys, and explains the presence at the house when the coroner arrived yesterday of Arthur H. Masten and George L. Nichols, the firm members. It was given out at the house, following the death of Barney yesterday, that the dying man had said nothing further than the remark repeated later by Dr. George A. Dixon, 'Doctor, this is an accident."

It is believed that the estate at present will net about $2,500,000. Under the provisions of a previous will Barney made disposition of from $7,000,000 to $9,000,000.

In yesterday's will the banker directed that his estate should be incorporated and administered by a board of trustees chosen from his former associates in the directorate of the now suspended Knickerbocker Trust Company Barney directed that his wife should be the chief beneficiary after his debts were paid.

Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst called at the Barney home today. Upon leaving he announced that a private funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon. The interment will be in Woodlawn.

The Knickerbocker Trust Company depositors' committee met today and organized by electing Hinsdill Parsons, general counsel and vice president of the General Electric Company, chairman, and William B. Duncan, Jr., treasurer. Resolutions expressing regret over the death of Mr. Barney were adopted.

EX-ATLNATAN HIGHLY HONORED

Rev. W. P. Therkieed Is Made President of Howard University.

Washington, D. C., November 15.—President Roosevelt, the Hon. James Bryce, British ambassador, and Mr. Andrew Carnegie delivered addresses reflecting pronounced optimism as to the future of the negro race here today. The occasion was the installation of the Rev. Wilbur Patterson Thirkield, as president of Howard university, and the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the founding of that institution, which is devoted primarily to the higher education of the negro.

President Roosevelt admitted the hardships endured by the negro in his efforts toward advancement, but urged that they be looked upon rather as a privilege and as stimulating greater effort for which the reward would be equally great.

Mr. Bryce pointed to the development of the race during the past forty years as being marvelous compared with the development of the Anglo-Saxon race. It was for Mr. Carnegie to awaken unrestrained enthusiasm by his declaration that it was not the question, "What shall we do with the negro?" but, "How can we get more of them?"

Mr. Carnegie completed his triumphs of popularity by showing in conclusion that the race in America had acquired title to estates in America during the past forty years larger than Belgium and Holland combined.

Many prominent personages participated in the ceremonies, representing government officials, the clergy and educators.

After the addresses mentioned, the program was continued with speeches by Dr. Elmer Brown, United States commissioner of education; Secretary Garfield; Rev. John E. Bowen, president of Gammon Theological seminary, Atlanta; the inaugural address of President Thirkield, and the benediction by Bishop Saterlee.

President Thirkield is well known in Atlanta. For a number of years he was president of the Atlanta university, a position which he resigned to accept an important offer from the Epworth League society of America.

FINLEY PREDICTS GREAT FUTURE

Charlotte, N. C., November 15.—The proper attitude of public service corporations towards politics was the subject of an address by President W. W. Finley, of the Southern Railway Company, at the annual banquet of the Greater Charlotte Club tonight. He declared that participation of corporations in political affairs is not justified, and advocated their complete abstinence from such activity. Mr. Finley insisted, however, on the preservation to these corporations of all their rights, and expressed himself in favor of limiting their participation in public matters to the field of fair treatment, protest and argument.

President Finley advocated the application of economic principles in the regulation of railroads and declare that the railway manager who believes as he does, that the property interests entrusted to his care should be made the object of regulation based on economic and business principles, must see to it that his business is conducted in accordance with those principles.

Mr. Finley predicted a great and prosperous future for North Carolina, the people of which state, he said, have shown a high appreciation of their opportunities. Mr. Finley also spoke of the giant strides made by that state following the recovery from the industrial and commercial prostration in which the south was left after the civil war, and said that in no state in the union, except some of those in the west, has the proportionate increase in production of wealth been greater than in North Carolina.

LARGE CROWDS AT CENTENNIAL

The Telfair County Centennial Closed on Yesterday.

SPEECH BY THE GOVERNOR

One of the Features Yesterday Was a Big Barbecue Given by the City of McRae—Telfair County Is One Hundred Years Old.

McRae, Ga., November 15.—(Special.) Today was the last day of the celebration of the Telfair County centennial. One hundred years ago Telfair county was organized, and out of the original territory have been carved several counties, the latest county being Dodge county.

It was determined some time ago to hold a centennial in conuection with a county fair.

One of the features today was a big barbecue, given by the city of McRae.

This morning Governor Smith spoke to a large audience, which had gathered from all parts of the county.

Governor Smith Speaks.

He reviewed the work of the legislature, the work of the railroad commission and further reforms which he expects from the legislature next summer. He classed the reforms advocated in the last campaign and the Macon platform under four heads: Clean primaries; disfranchisement; corporation regulation, and the restriction of the liquor traffic.

Governor Smith declared that all of these reforms had been accomplished, with the possible exception of the last named, and that under a different method than was proposed in the Macon platform.

Governor Smith reviewed at length the disfranchisement measure and the hard work necessary to pass it through the general assembly.

He called attention to the fact that while the legislature had for years attempted to enact anti-pass legislation without success, that the new commission had passed an order, effective January 1, taking away pass privileges. He said that he felt sure the next legislature would enact anti-lobbying legislation.

Among other things, he said:

"The cause of prohibition will be on trial next year in Georgia. If we can stop the sale then prohibition will be a success. Not alone will Georgia be benefited by our doing so, but the fact carried to other states that prohibition can and does prohibit in Georgia will help the cause of temperance all over the land, and aid in the elimination of the use of liquor from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the lakes to the gulf.

"The legislature fully met the demand for the enactment of laws to protect the rights of the citizen in his relation to transportation, express, telephone, telegraph and public utility companies.

"The next legislature should be filled with representatives who wear no badge of service other than devotion to the state and their fellow-men. You know who are really moved by the desire to serve and who serve chiefly some machine or corporate master. Let us strive to make ours a model of good government in the interest of all the people of our state."

WORK STOPPED ON BUILDINGS

Opening of Fourth District School Postponed.

COUNTY FUNDS UNAVAILABLE

Trustees of 4th District Agricultural College Order Work Stopped in View of Supreme Court's Decision of Case Brought by Taxpayers.

Carrollton, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—At the recent meeting here of the board of trustees of the fourth district agricultural college suspension of the work on the buildings was ordered.

This step was found to be necessary, and was unanimously agreed upon by the trustees, in view of the decision of the superior court that county funds are not applicable to this school. Suit was made by taxpayers of the county some time ago to prevent the collection of a special tax for the construction of these buildings, and the decision handed down in favor of the taxpayers has made it necessary to discontinue work, and accordingly the opening of the school will be indefinitely postponed.

The question as to whether county funds may be used for this purpose is of interest generally, as most of the district schools of the state have been built with funds in part supplied from treasuries of counties where schools are located, and built only in part, as few of them are complete, and the friends of most of them have been hoping for aid from the treasuries of sister counties to complete them.

The action of the trustees was taken after full statement of the situation had been heard from Trustee Zellers, of Coweta county. The history of the suit as set forth by Mr. Zellers is, in brief, as follows:

History of the Case.

Whereas, The governor of the state and this board of trustees met at Columbus, Ga., December 8, 1906, for the purpose of receiving offers for the location of a school for the fourth congressional district, and

Whereas, Upon consideration of an offer made on behalf of Carroll county, consisting of an offer to raise a cash subscription of $30,000, plus the necessary purchase money for an acceptable tract of 250 acres of land, and a pledge of free water and lights for ten years and telephones for five years, said school was awarded to Carroll county; whereupon J. A. Murrah was elected chairman and L. C. Mandeville treasurer, both of Carroll county; and

Whereas, This board thereafter, through appropriate committees, acting upon information that a greater part of the funds necessary to make said offer good had already been raised by subscription, consisting in part of the donation of $5,000 made by the ordinary of Carroll county upon recommendation of the grand jury, and that the prospects were favorable for securing the balance, selected and purchased one of several eligible tracts of land brought to the notice of the board, and entered into contract for the construction, he building to be erected on said land; their release and discharge depending upon exhaustion of funds in hands of the treasurer, available for building purposes, after payment of the purchase money for the land, said purchase money amounting to the sum of $9,625; and

Whereas, The report of the finance committee and the treasurer of this board now discloses that the total of subscription for the establishment of this school in Carroll county had by the month of August reached the sum of about $47,000, consisting in part of a further donation of $15,000 made on behalf of the county as a whole by said ordinary, upon recommendation of the grand jury at the April term, 1906, and consisting in part of an investment by the city of Carrollton of the sum of $4,200 in extension of its waterworks to the school grounds. Said report further discloses that by the end of August, 1907, two buildings contracted for, viz.: the academic building and the boys' dormitory, were nearing completion, while a sum between $11,000 and $12,000, consisting of individual subscriptions, remained uncollected—this amount only of the entire $47,000; and that since the end of August the contractors have prosecuted exterior and interior finishing work, as far as money actually in the treasury would go; no important amount having been paid in since the end of August on the balance of subscriptions then outstanding. Further that the finance committee is now indebted to the contractors in the sum of a few hundred dollars, while subscribers are indebted to the school fund in the sum of more than $11,000; and $15,000 Borrowed.

Whereas, Information is now disclosed to this board that the sum of $15,000 was borrowed by said ordinary for the purpose of completing payment of the second subscription made by him on behalf of the county as a whole, and that a decision was rendered by the superior court November 2, 1907, on a suit filed by certain taxpayers September 2, 1907, seeking to enjoin the collection of any tax to meet said subscriptions, to the effect that county funds are not applicable to the school, over a taxpayer's protest by proper suit, and restraining the ordinary, tax collector and county treasurer from levying, collecting and paying money raised by taxation to redeem said loan. Further that all subscriptions made and paid or unpaid were made by the subscribers contingent upon the establishment of said school in Carroll county, and that each subscription being necessary to make good the offer upon which the school was awarded to Carroll county provisionally, as aforesaid. Further, that prior to the filing of said taxpayers' suit about $30,000 of the entire school fund, under the direction of the finance committee and with the encouragement and support of what seemed to be universal acquiescence, had been expended in land and buildings for the school; so that at the time of filing of said suit, and for a few weeks while there were rumors of such a movement on the part of a few taxpayers, payments on subscriptions to the fund came practically to a standstill; and,

Whereas, The report of the treasurer shows that probably a safe estimate of the final cost of the two buildings, including lighting, plumbing and bathroom equipment, would fall below the sum of $25,000, and that but for the obstructions encountered in financing the project there would have been on completion of the two buildings and collection of the balance unpaid subscriptions, money enough in the treasury to have enabled the finance and building committees to carry forward the work far towards completion, of erecting an indispensable third building of the necessary group, to-wit: the dining hall.

Zellar's Resolutions.

Therefore, In consideration of the premises, and other information obtainable with regard to the present status of this enterprise, and the high estate it had heretofore attained in the affections of almost the entire citizenship of the county,

Resolved, first, That in our view of the proper construction of section 4 of said act, the award of the school to Carroll county in the first instance was provisional only, and contingent upon the actual making and perfection of the donation originally offered; and that it is competent for, and incumbent upon, the governor, with the aid of this board, to pass upon and declare its opinion on the question, here and now raised, by the facts disclosed, whether said donation was in fact made and perfected within one year from the passage of this act.

Resolved, second, That this board recognizes it to be true that an affirmative declaration upon those who made the loan of $15,000 to said ordinary, and might work a like hardship on persons legally responsible for the appropriation of $50,00 of the county funds; an injury that would be irremediable, so fas as within the power of this board to afford them relief, after having made such affirmative declaration.

Resolved third, That this board recognizes it to be true that its negative declaration on said question, here so raised, would, by operation of provisions of said act, in the absence of future amendatory legislation, permanently deprive the fourth congressional district of its school of agriculture and mechanical arts.

Resolved fourth, That this board further recognizes it to be true that a negative declaration on the question so raised is the only means legally within the power of the board of trustees of affording any relief to those on whom this hardship would fall.

Resolved fifth, That said sums of $5,000 and $15,000 having been advanced and having come into the treasury of this board, and having been expended in the purchase of the school land and the erection of school buildings on the faith that these appropriations were acquiesced in and would continue to be acquiesced in by all the taxpayers as a donation by the county as a whole, made in consideration of the great benefits conferred upon the county by the location of said school within its borders, while constituting no debt that this board has means or authority to assume payment of, does constitute a debt of the highest equitable and moarl obligation hanging over the school property.

Resolved sixth, That in default of provision for payment of this debt the establishment of the school in Carrol county cannot take place under such favorable auspices as the board has heretofore expected and continues to hope for.

Resolved seventh, That before taking the final step of establishing said school by a decision that the donation as a whole has been made and perfected in the meaning of section 4 of said act, it is eminently desirable, in the interest of the school itself and its future successful operation, depending, in our opinion, on the good repute of its foundation, that means be provided by those whom it may concern in Carroll county, the interests of which county are most to be advanced by the establishment of said school, for the ultimate payment of said debt.

Resolved eighth, That the opening of the school heretofore appointed for January 6, 1908, be accordingly postponed for at least one month, and that the contractors be required to suspend work and stop all expenditures except as necessary to protect the property, until notice from the finance committee or treasurer that subscriptions in arrearage have been paid, or until notice from the board that the further progress of the enterprise is no longer obstructed by a default of any kind.

Postponement Thirty Days.

When the above resolutions had been considered for some time, which were understood to be favored quite strongly by Messrs. Thomason and Persons, as well as by Mr. Zellars, the following compromise substitute was discussed and finally adopted, as presented by Mr. Murrah:

Resolution as Passed.

"The trustees of the fourth congressional district Agricultural and Mechanical school, having met in Carrollton on November 11, and having made a thorough examination of the school buildings and having considered the contract entered into between the county of Carroll and the board of trustees, find that said contract has not been complied with, and on the request of interested citizens, we grant them thirty days additional time to comply with said contract before passing on same."

Plans for Furnishing Work.

The next move suggested is that friends of the school try to raise additional funds by popular subscription from all the districts of the county, sufficient to perfect the donation and carry out the contract in good faith, originally made on behalf of the county, with the board; and in time, if possible, for the buildings to be completed and the school started in January, unhandicapped by the dishonored loan of a good part of the money with which it was built.

The injunction case which precipitated this state of affairs came on for hearing before Judge Freeman on October 25 and 26, under the style of Wesley Dominick et al. vs. J. H. Barron, ordinary, et al. The plaintiffs were efficiently represented by Colonel W. C. Wright, of Newman, Ga., whose skill, however, could not have availed him much, but for the conceded fact that his position was well sheltered by the narrow constitutional restrictions, in the supreme law of this state, governing local taxation. It was elucidated by the lawyers that the part of Colonel Wright's petition seeking to enjoin the banks perpetually as against the county treasury for reimbursement, could not be maintained in this suit, and Judge Freeman so decided, for the reason that the county was not a party to it. This was the best defendants' counsel could do, and only warded off for the time being the plea which can be effectually delivered whenever the banks might sue on their notes, by a proceeding to cause the county authorities to plead in good faith the county's legal nonliability for $15,000 of this debt; while the remaining $5,000 could be recovered of the treasurer and his bondsmen by proper suit prosecuted to that end.

WANT UNCLE SAM TO TAKE ACTION

'Frisco Chamber of Commerce Don't Like Japan's Attitude Toward Korea.

San Francisco, Cal., November 15.—The chamber of commerce of this city resolved to ask the California delegation in congress to inquire into the action of Japan in alleged attempts to override the treaty existing between the United States and Korea. The matter was called to the attention of the commercial organization by H. H. Hulbert, who, it is said, is the official representative in America of the deposed emperor of Korea.

Hulbert addressed a communication to the chamber of commerce in which he stated that Japan had taken the initial steps of a course, which, if carried to fulfillment, would mean the destruction of American influence not only in Korea, but in China as well. The United States has a close trade treaty with Korea. Under this agreement, American goods enter the Hermit Kingdom upon the payment of a 7 per cent duty. In the process of reorganizing the affairs of Korea, Japan has undertaken to review its customs agreements. This rearrangement, it is stated, contemplates a customs union between Japan and Korea, with the result that goods from the United States will be charged the same rate of duty in Korea as in Japan.

CORNERSTONE LAID AT BAXLEY

Senator Steve Clay Delivered Address---Grand Master Jeffries Presided.

Baxley, Ga., November 15.—(Special.) In the presence of a very large crowd, the cornerstone of Appling county's new court house was laid yesterday, Grand Master Thomas H. Jeffries, of Atlanta, presiding at the exercises, and making a splendid Masonic address. He was followed by Georgia's junior senator, A. S. Clay, who made a speech of forty-five minutes without reference to politics. He delivered an able and instructive address on the lines of education and the prosperity of our county.

Possibly there were never more Masons gathered at this place for the celebration of any occasion than today, the local lodge being in full attendance, and many Masons from Surrency, Hazlehurst and other places participating.

Appling now has in the course of construction one of the best and costliest court houses in wiregrass Georgia.

Ordinarily payments for this quarter are made on December 15, but it was announced that the earlier date was named this year.

MAY FRENCH, POET, SUICIDES

San Francisco, Cal., November 15.—Mrs. May French, poetess and authoress, ended her life yesterday by taking cyanide of potassium at the bungalow of the poet, George F. Sterling, at Carmel-by-the-Sea, a resort of artists and writers on the Pacific ocean below Monterey. No reason can be assigned for the suicidal act, and her friends seek in vain for some explanation for the impulse which prompted her to take her life in such a sudden and tragic manner. Miss French enjoyed good health, and her life, to all appearances, ran smoothly, giving every promise of a brilliant career. For some years past she had been a contributor to various coast magazines and some of her verses and prose have found their way into eastern publications. Miss French was 24 years of age.

NEGRO HANGED FOR ASSAULT

Confessed That He Assaulted Little Deaf and Dumb Girl.

Greensboro, Ala., November 15.—Doses Taylor, a negro, was hanged here today for criminal assault. The crime was committed in September against the little daughter of Alfred Johnson, a well known farmer of the neighborhod. The girl was deaf and dumb and partially paralyzed.

A half hour before the execution Taylor confessed his crime to the sheriff, saying he has been afraid to speak before for fear a mob might take him from jail. His neck was not broken, death resulting from strangulation in fifteen minutes.

TIFT HAS GIVEN $500 BOND

Three Warrants Were Served Upon Albany Representative.

Albany, Ga., November 15.—(Special.) Three warrants were yesterday afternoon served by Sheriff Edwards upon Representative S. H. Tift. He immediately made bond for $500.

The warrants charged carrying concealed weapons, assault with intent to murder, and the third warrant was a peace warrant. Hon. Joe Hill Hall, of Macon, is representing Tift.

The warrants were sworn out by Mrs. E. F. Jackson, a cousin of Mr. Tift's, as a result of the personal encounter between Mr. Tift and her husband, when the former, it is alleged, fired a pistol at Mr. Jackson.

CARY DEPRECATES TALK OF FINANCIAL FLURRY

Chicago, November 15.—Elbert H. Cary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, thinks there is "too much discussion" of the financial conditions of the country.

"All this talk about the so-called tight money market makes people really believe there is one, when, as a matter of fact, everything is in first-class shape," he said last night.

"If I thought there was anything the matter with the country finances I would not hesitate to give my views at length. But what is the sense in making a great fuss over the so-called financial flurry?

"In a little while all the disturbance will be over, and then the persons who have been doing a lot of talking about the temporary financial upset will feel silly, I think.

"It is not a time for talking. It is a time for a strengthening of the general care in the unquestionable financial soundness and abounding material prosperity of the nation."

STREET CAR MEN ARE ON STRIKE

Louisville Street Railway Company Is Badly Tied Up.

Louisville, Ky., November 15.—For the second time in seven months, Louisville is suffering from a street car strike, the 850 union employees of the Louisville Railway Company having walked out shortly after last midnight. The first day of the strike, however, was not marked by anything approaching the disorder that attended the strike last April, and when the partial service furnished during the day was discontinued at nightfall, only twenty arrests had been made, virtually all of them for "disorderly conduct," which charges covered mainly the throwing of an occasional brick or jeering at the nonunion men.

The company operates on a normal base between six and seven hundred cars. It was announced by the officials that when service was suspended this evening they had forty cars running. Only about a dozen cars were run during the morning, and only a few passengers were carried during the day. The service was suspended at nightfall in order to give the police a rest, the entire force having been on duty for over twenty-four hours.

Five hundred strike breakers arrived during the day from Chicago and Indianapolis, and two hundred more were expected to arrive tonight. Adding to these the two hundred nonunion employees who did not go out, the company officials claim they will tomorrow have almost a full force, and will give practically a normal service. The strikers claim to have won over a number of nonunion men during the day. All talk of mediation or conciliation has been abandoned, and the affair is regarded as a finish fight by the public as well as by the strikers and company officials.

CALEB POWERS IS A SICK MAN

Work of Selecting a Jury Consumes the Fifth Day.

Georgetow , Ky., November 15.—The fifth day of the trial of Caleb Powers was largely consumed in the work of empaneling a jury from the special venire summoned from Harrison county, which arrived here this morning. The work of selecting a jury and the tender of the counter affidavits were interesting features of the forenoon session.

Powers was quite ill last night, and the services of a physician were necessary. Powers has been suffering from dysentery for the last ten days, and excitement and work preparing for his trial are doubtless responsible for his physical breakdown. He came into court promptly, however, but looked pale and weak.

During the examination of special veniremen it developed that Harrison county had been flooded with Powers' published book containing his speeches and account of his trials. Out of twenty-four prospective jurors examined fully half had received through the mail, from some unknown source, copies of Powers' book, which, it appears, had been sent to various precincts from which veniremen had been summoned. This discovery caused a sensation in the court room.

An amusing contrast with these developments was the statement of one venireman, who had never heard of the noted case and had never read a paper containing an account of it.

FIRED GUNS AND PISTOLS TO SCARE AWAY GHOSTS

Gainesville, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—L. M. Crane, a prominent planter of the southern part of the county, is under a peace bond for good behavior on account of unusual charges brought against him in the justice court of his district.

It was charged that Mr. Crane and a neighbor, C. W. Wayne, had had a dispute over a land line. It was stated also that Crane was enraged over the refusal of a petition for a new road he wanted established. It is said that Crane made night hideous with his shouts and raving, cries and praying, firing of guns and pistols, and his weird imitation of all kinds of animals.

The neighbors feared that he was losing his mind, and had him apprehended with a peace warrant. When the warrant was served he appeared at the door of his house and fired both barrels of his shotgun in the air. He explains his actions by stating that unknown parties or ghosts have been troubling him, and that his cries and shots were to frighten away the disturbers.

RICH IS WOMAN CONVICT; CRIME PARTNER OF NEGRO

Chicago, November 15.—Mrs. Evelyn Romadka, who is the wife of a wealthy merchant of Milwaukee, and who was recently indicted for burglary and larceny, was today sentenced to the penitentiary for from one to twenty years by Judge Bretano. Her counsel declared in court that she was being "railroaded" to prison for the purpose of shielding other persons. The trial lasted eleven minutes.

Mrs. Romadka was convicted of being accessory to the burglaries and larcenies of Albert Jones, a negro. She was arrested while wearing jewels stolen from the home of a restaurant keeper. How a woman of her social position came to share in the plunder of the crimes of Jones has never been explained. Jones is now in jail awaiting trial.

A SENSITIVE DISPOSITION LANDED PERRY IN JAIL

An oversensitive disposition is an unfortunate possession at any time and there is one man in Atlanta who is doubtless so firmly convinced of this fact that he will never allow his feelings to get him into trouble again.

An alleged dealer in feathers and cleaner thereof, one Joe Perry, an employee of the Trauton Mattress Co., is the unfortunate victim of the oversensitive disposition and as a result of his possession he spent last night in a cell at police barrack.

In Friday's Constitution there appeared a report of complaints having been made to the police by certain Atlanta housewives who declared that a man had gotten feather beds from them to clean and had never brought them back. No name was mentioned in the story, but so sensitive was Perry—perhaps there are ethics in the feather business—that he resented any reflection on a member of the craft. Incidentally he paid a deserved tribute to The Constitution as an advertising medium, declaring that since the publication of the story he had been unable to get any feathers.

As Perry's name had not been mentioned and as the complaints reported had been made to the police it was not thought that any injury had been done him or that any reparation was due him. He was told to take his troubles to the police, and forthwith so did.

Arriving at headquarters, he demanded of Sergeant Mayor an explanation of the charges made against some feather man, and so insistent was he in his demands that he got himself locked up with a charge of disorderly conduct lodged against him and an order to hold on suspicion in connection with the feather thefts.

At the police station Perry gave his name as Joe Johnson, but later in the night his wife came to the station and told police his name was Perry, and he was employed by the Tranton Mattress Company.

FIVE STUDENTS ARE ARRESTED

Charge That Fellow School Mate Died from Effects of Hazing.

Oakwood, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—Five former students of a country school in this county, near Oakwood, were arrested Wednesday by Deputy Sheriff W. A. Little upon serious charges. It is alleged that they are responsible for the death of a schoolmate last summer, the affair having been kept quiet till the father of the dead boy this week has accumulated evidence sufficient to warrant him in instituting a preliminary investigation into the cause of his son's death.

It is stated that the boys overpowered Burrell Dollar, a 16-year-old boy, tied him to two small sapplings and used the sapplings as the old-time rack was used. Injuries resulted from the rough handling, it is claimed, from which the boy was prostrated, remained ill for some time, the symptoms baffling the skill of the physician to whom the sufferer did not confide the affair of the hazing, and after a few weeks young Dollar died. Two sons of John Pass and three sons of Dock Beard were placed under bond. All the families concerned are prominent in this section of the county.

INJURED CLERK IS IMPROVING

Man Who Was Shot by His Cousin Likely to Recover.

Macon, Ga., November 15.—(Special.) J. M. Gay, the young clerk who was severely wounded by his cousin, M. C. Tharpe, in Bellvue Wednesday night, is improving at the city hospital, and it is believed by the attending physicians that he will recover. The shot fired into his abdomen came from a revolver and the wound was a dangerous one.

Overhead Fire in Saloon.

Macon, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—An overhead fire in the saloon building occupied by J. J. Flahive, on Cotton avenue, did slight damage this morning. The flames started in the second story, which was occupied by a negro family, and no one could account for the fire. It had gained considerable headway when the firemen reached it, and a stubborn fight was required. Three streams were played on the building, and soon the flames were under control. The loss will not reach more than $400. The stock of groceries and liquors on the first floor was considerably damaged by water.

Lively Race for City Attorney.

Macon, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—Attorney Andrew Lane is to become a candidate for city attorney along with Attorney Charles Hall, and the two will enter a lively race for the place. City Attorney Minter Wimberly has held the place fourteen years, and will not again ask council for the place. There may be others who will ask for the position. Judge John P. Ross is being discussed, as also is Attorney Walter Grace and Judge W. D. Nottingham. There will soon be numbers of candidates for the offices that will be filled by the members of the city council, and when it comes time to make up the list of fire employees and the members of the police department a great deal of interest will be manifested.

To Erect New State Building.

Columbia, S. C., November 15.—(Special.)—Owing to the crowded condition of the state capitol it has become necessary for the erection of a building in which will be located the supreme court, the university law school, and offices for the state superintendent of education, the commissioner of agriculture, the historical commission, and perhaps the state railroad commission. A bill will be introduced at the approaching session of the legislature providing for such a building, which will probably be located on some of the property of the University of South Carolina.

DRUG MEN WISH TO HELP POLICE

Reputable Druggists Desire Prosecutions of Law Violators.

The police department has gone actively to work to find out what druggists have been selling cocaine, morphine and similar drugs since the passage of the drug law last summer by the legislature.

The reputable druggists of the city are heartily in sympathy with this movement, and has expressed a desire to aid the police in their efforts to stop the illegal sale of norcotics by making arrests of those who violate the law.

The reputable druggists in the city have signified a readiness to assist the police, and some of them have gone so far as to state that they are willing to pay for the services of detectives to find out who are violating the drug law.

The records of the police show that somebody has been selling the drugs barred by the new law, and most of the sales have been made to negroes.

There is no evidence that any reputable drug store in the city has been violating the law, but the druggists who have been making illegal sales will be found out, the police state, and will be promptly arrested and prosecuted.

Postoffice Safe Robbed.

CONTRACT LET FOR NEW PIPE

Cast Iron Pipe Bought at $24.50 a Ton.

The subcommittee of the general committee of the water board and council committee on the expenditure of the water bond money met yesterday afternoon and awarded the contract for the pipe for the new main from the river to the reservoir to the United States Cast Iron and Foundry Company, of Chattanooga, Tenn.

The Chattanooga company made a bid of $24.97 a ton for cast-iron pipe, which was the lowest. There were four bids for riveted steel pipe, one of which would have made the total cost of the new main some $16,000. There was a spirited contest between the cast-iron and the riveted steel representatives. The committee decided to take the cast-iron pipe, and upon holding a consultation with C. W. Gray, who represented the Chattanooga company the price was cut from $24.97 to $24.50, making a saving to the city of about $1,500.

The subcommittee will report to the general committee Monday at noon so a final report can be made to council that afternoon.

MISS WHEELER BROUGHT SUIT

Daughter of Confederate Hero Sues McLeon Arms Company.

Cleveland, Ohio, November 15.—A suit was filed in common pleas court here today by Miss Lucy Wheeler, of Wheeler, Ala., daughter of the late General Joseph Wheeler, against the McLean Arms and Ammunition Company, of this city, for $115,625, said to be due her father's estate for five and a half years' services rendered by General Wheeler as president of the company. Miss Wheeler is administratrix of the estate. The petition avers that General Wheeler acted as president of the company from July 1901, until his death on January 25, 1906, taht he devoted his entire time to securing contracts for the product of the company, from the United States and foreign governments; that General Wheeler paid his personal expenses covering the entire period named, and that no part of his salary has been paid. The company manufacturs arms and weapons of war.

The transfer of that membership back to Mr. Bowne from Mr. Starr for $85,000 was recorded today. The price paid by Mr. Starr was the highest on record and the selling price the lowest in several years.

Season of Coughs and Colds is Upon Us.

Now that the season is approaching when people are most subject to the unpleasant experience of colds, with the consequent wearing strain of coughing, and the danger of more serious trouble apt to follow neglect, the following simple formula is most timely. It is said to break up a cold in 24 hours and cure any cough that is curable. Mix thoroughly a half ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine with two ounces of glycerine and eight ounces of good whisky. Use in teaspoonful doses every four hours.. Five ounces of tincture Cinchona compound can be used in place of the whisky with the same effect.

The ingredients are inexpensive and can be purchased without trouble at any good drug store. To avoid substitution of some inferior pine product for the Virgin Oil of Pine, it is better to purchase each separately and mix them at home.

The genuine Virgin Oil of Pine is put up for dispensing, only in 1-2-ounce vials, each vial securely sealed in a round wooden case with an engraved wrapper showing plainly the name—Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure, guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906, Serial No. 451, prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, Ohio. Be sure and get the genuine, as the oil sold in bulk and cheap imitations put out to resemble Virgin Oil of Pine in name and style of package are ineffective, being largely composed of a distillation of pine needles, or leaves, instead of from the pine tree proper.

These pine needle oils are not intended for internal use, and when taken internally usually cause nausea. Their use is mainly confined to the manufacture of soap and similar purposes.

FREED OF MURDER CHARGE

Anniston, Ala., November 15.—James Hall and Cleveland Bedford, white boys, aged 16 and 19, respectively, who were charged with the murder of Frank Knight, a street car conductor, were released today after a preliminary hearing before Judge Crook.

The state's principal witness, to whom Hall is alleged to have made a confession, has left the state and the prosecution therefore has been dropped.

IDENTIFICATION OF BOOKS

Former Cashier Jackson on Stand in Walsh Trial.

Chicago, November 15.—The early part of the day in the trial of John R. Walsh, former president of the Chicago National bank, was occupied by the identification of the books of the institution. Former Cashier Jackson, of the bank, was on the stand, and he named the books as they were presented to him. There were about 500 of the books in the court room, and the identification process was somewhat tedious and slow.

COLUMBUS MEN BADLY HURT

Dr. Sheridan Was Perhaps Fatally Injured in Runaway.

Columbus, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—Dr. W. D. Sheridan and Taylor Ham were thrown out of a buggy and injured, the former perhaps fatally, this afternoon on the Hamilton road north of Columbus, their horse becoming frightened at an automobile and running away.

Dr. Sheridan was picked up in an unconscious condition, and from the fact that blood was running from his ears and a superficial examination of his injuries, the attending physicians think that his skull was fractured at the base of the brain and pronounce his condition as extremely serious. Dr. Sheridan is about 65 years of age. He and Mr. Ham were returning from a day's hunt when the accident occurred

CARS STOPPED BY A FUSE

Accident in the Station on Alabama Street Delayed Traffic.

The "blowing out" of a fuse at the Alabama street station of the Georgia Railway and Electric Company caused the cars to stop for about fifteen minutes last night, the majority of the suburbanites being delayed in getting their supper at the regular time.

The accident to the fuse happened about 7 o'clock, and both the lights and running power of the street cars were temporarily out of working order. In about fifteen minutes' time, however, everything was repaired, and the wheels were set in motion once more.

Church Reunion Planned.

Macon, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—A reunion of old and new members of the First Street Methodist church will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Budd, and the congregation next Sunday morning. A program that will prove interesting to old and young has been planned and former members as well as those at present attending are invited to be present. There will be special music and a special sermon, the pastor occupying the pulpit, and afterwards there will be an old-time handshaking. The announcement of the meeting has created interest among the members and friends of the church.

Fowler Inspected Convict Camps.

Macon, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—Representative Ben Fowler has just returned from a trip through north Georgia in which, with a number of legislative friends on the committee named to inspect convict camps in the state, he made a tour that proved highly interesting to the men. He went through the mining camps and gave several days to the work of ascertaining how the prisoners are being treated. What the party really thinks about Georgia convicts will be saved for the next session of the Georgia legislature.

$2,000 SECURED BY SLICK TRICK

Stranger Obtained Grip of President of Pine Bloom Lumber Company.

Savannah, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—Some slick thief is $2,000 ahead of the game of life by a smooth trick worked today.

B. B. Gray, a turpentine operator of Pine Bloom, Ga., appeared at the Screven house at noon. He carried a small grip. He told Clerk Bell, who was on duty, that he wanted to leave the grip with him, while he went to dinner. The clerk acquiesced and Gray deposited $2,000 in the grip, the clerk watching him as he did so. Then Mr. Gray was handed a brass check, and the grip was deposited with other baggage for which checks had been given.

After a few minutes another man appeared, a guest of the hotel, whose name the hotel people say they have. Feeling in his pocket, he pulled out two checks and got two grips. He said he had had another check, but could not find it. "That's my grip, though," he said, pointing to Gray's. Mr. Bell handed it over and the guest departed.

Presently Gray appeared and the grip was not to be found. Then the police were notified. Three officers hurried to the union station, found the man who had been given the grips, inspected Gray's and found the $2,000, in Savannah association certificates, gone. The man had eluded the vigilance of the officers and skipped out of a side door. He has not been found.

Mr. Gray is president of the Pine Bloom Lumber Company. He had secured the money from the Chatham bank, and expected to use it tomorrow in paying off the company's force of employees.

SHORT STORIES OF LOCAL FIELD

J. B. RICHARDS, ASSOCIATE SUPERINTENDENT of the Georgia Anti-Saloon League, will deliver an address Sunday night at 7 o'clock at the meeting of the B. Y. P. U. of First Baptist church. He will tell how the young people can assist in enforcing the state prohibition law. A large crowd is expected to be present to hear him.

THE LITERARY COMMITTEE OF THE Wesley Memorial church Baraca class has arranged for a debate, in which a number of the members will engage, on Monday evening, November 18, at 8 o'clock. The question selected is, "Resolved, That Atlanta should own its public utilities," and as this is a real live issue in Atlanta affairs, the occasion promises to be one of interest. The men and boys of the church are invited to attend.

REV. E. DEAN ELLENWOOD, PASTOR of the Universalist church, lectured at Canon, Ga., Wednesday and Thursday evenings, returning to the city on Friday.

TRAVELING MAN WAS SHOT

Friend Was Handling Pistol—Shooting Was Accident.

Eatonton, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—While examining a pistol in the room of a traveling man at the Putnam hotel last night, Jackson Ewalt accidentally shot T. F. Jackson, a traveling salesman from Athens. The ball entered above the right eye and glancing came out over the right ear; a quarter of an inch either way from the wound would have caused death. Beyond a bad scar, no serious results will follow.

Ewalt is the man Congressman Breckinridge, of Kentucky, came to Milledgeville to defend five years ago on account of family friendship.

Mr. Jackson and Mr. Ewalt are the best of friends.

HAWKINSVILLE HAS LARGE FIRE

The Stock of Two Large Firms Almost Completely Destroyed.

Hawkinsville, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—At 4 o'clock this morning fire completely destroyed B. C. Ridley & Bro.'s stock of groceries and burned through into the Poole Mercantile Company's fancy dry goods store, seriously damaging everything in it. It had such headway when discovered that the fire department could not control the flames, which spread throughout the brick block.

The Poole mercantile stock, estimated at $20,000, with $13,000 insurance, was almost totally ruined, as the flames burned the wall between them and Ridley's, requiring a flood of water to stop the progress.

Ridley & Bro.'s, stock, estimated at $3,500, with $2,700 insurance, was almost a total loss.

The building, owned by J. P. Watson, with $2,000 insurance, has an estimated damage of $3,000.

MAKE WAR ON "RED LIGHTS"

South Columbus Citizens May Take Matter to Courts.

Columbus, Ga., November 15.—(Special.) The South Columbus Improvement League has declared war on the "red light" district, located in the southeastern quarter of the city, declaring that the presence of the social evil in such congested shape damages property values in practically the entire southern half of the city.

At a meeting of the league last night at the courthouse a committee was appointed to go before the police commission and ask that body to officially abolish the red light district. Before the committee was appointed a resolution was offered providing for the prosecution of real estate owners or real estate agents who rent houses for immoral purposes, and also for the prosecution of persons occupying such houses for immoral purposes. After quite a discussion it was decided that the more conservative course would be to first go before the police commission, and if relief is not secured there it would then be time to take the matter into the courts.

REV. ALLEN WILSON TO PREACH ON BIBLE

In discussing the question last night, "Whose fault will it be if I am lost?" Dr. Allen Wilson sketched very vividly a series of pictures of people who with more or less vigor had engaged in the good fight for eternal life, but who had ultimately lost out. He showed how God, by His providence, His word, and the great plan of redemption, had supplied men with the conditions of success and that if they ultimately lost out, the fault was their own.

One of the most interesting features of these services is the question box. The preacher answered questions on religious topics that are placed in a box in the lobby. Many of the answers are very interesting and very instructive.

On Sunday the morning subject will be, "The Bible; What it is, and How to Use it." At night Dr. Wilson will preach on Christian baptism, as a great deal of emphasis has been laid on that ordinance throughout the meetings.

The afternoon meeting will be for women only. Subject, "What a Woman Can Do." At night the choir will sing Meredith's anthem, "All Thy Works Praise Thee."

NEGRESS KILLS HER MISTRESS

Inflicts Ghastly Wounds on Her Head With a Hatchet.

New Orleans, La., November 15.—Wearing a silk underskirt and other clothes of her dead mistress, Clara Barrow, a negro girl about 18 years old, was today placed under arrest on the charge of having murdered Mrs. Bessie Carter at the latter's residence in the old French quarter of New Orleans last night.

The girl, who had long been employed as a confidential maid at Mrs. Carter's, was the first to give the alarm, and was suspected by the police soon after they began an investigation. When put through a "sweating" process today, she broke down and acknowledged that it was she who had taken a hatchet and inflicted the ghastly wounds on Mrs. Carter's neck and head. She said that Mrs. Carter had tried to kill her and that she had used the hatchet in self defense. The police charge that robbery was the motive of the crime.

IN NO HURRY TO SELL COTTON

Muscogee Farmers Are Marketing In Leisurely Manner.

Columbus, Ga., November 15.—(Special.) Farmers in this section are marketing the cotton crop in leisurely manner. In fact, since the recent slump in prices the receipts at the Columbus warehouses have been exceedingly light. The farmers say frankly that they will hold until better prices again prevail, and are storing away the bales in ginhouses and under wagon sheds as if prepared to hold out indefinitely. It is believed that most of the "distress cotton" in this section has been placed on the market already.

The farmers in the section around Columbus are also averse to selling cotton seed at the present prices. Many say that it would be more valuable to use as fertilizer than to sell at prevailing prices, and do not seem at all anxious to dispose of their seed at the present quotations.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

As a "Demonstrable Religion" will be discussed at the Grand Opera House Sunday at 3 p. m. by Professor F. H. Leonard, of Boston. Seats free. Everybody invited.

45 BOYS ON PROBATION DISMISSED BY RECORDER

Forty-five youthful probationers, of ages ranging from 6 to 16 years, were dismissed by Judge Broyles yesterday afternoon, upon the recommendation of Probation Officer Gloer. This was the largest number of probationers dismissed at one time since the establishment of the probation system for dealing with youthful criminals, in April, 1904.

According to the rules governing the probation system, when a boy is found guilty of any offense against the laws of the city he is placed on probation at the discretion of the recorder and is put under the care of Probation Officer Gloer.

The probationers have their cases left open, and if their conduct is good their cases are dismissed after a time running from six to twelve months. If the conduct does not improve the culprit is again arraigned and perhaps again placed on probation, after correction by the parent. If he finally proves incorrigible he is sentenced to the reformatory or to the stockade.

The parents of most of the boys were present. A large number of the ladies of the city and others interested in the probation work were present.

Plain Face?

Your doctor understands the formula of Ayer's Hair Vigor. Ask him about your using it. Do as he says. He knows.

Did nature give you a plain face? What of it? Make your hair so handsome that every one will forget your face. Make them talk only of the softness, richness, and marvelous beauty of your hair. Ayer's Hair Vigor, "the new kind," does not color the hair.

OPEN THE BAGGAGE ROOM TO ALL.

The railroad commission, called upon to determine whether or not a monopoly exists in the handling of baggage at the Atlanta depots, has an admirable opportunity to render a decision that will be of considerable public service.

It should open all baggage rooms, on terms of perfect equality, to every resident and business interest of Atlanta.

The baggage room at the terminal station, or any other station, should be as much a public institution as is the postoffice.

The citizen who does business with Uncle Sam in Atlanta has no alternative. He must either go to the federal building, or leave his business untransacted. To attempt to admit only a certain class of citizens to the building, or to compel each to subscribe to certain illogical conditions, would be the climax of absurdity.

The traveler has no alternative. Either his baggage must be handled through the depots, or he must travel without it. To admit baggage to these public institutions only under certain conditions is as unfair and illogical as would be a similar stipulation regarding the postoffice.

The service tendered at the depots may or may not be excellent. That is not the point. The baggage room is a public institution, that should be open alike to all travelers.

It should be no more necessary to use the name of one concern to enjoy access to the baggage room than to use the name of one firm or individual to obtain access to the postoffice.

Free access to all, and an open field for transfer service which has nothing to fear from the contrast of competition!

That is what our people want!

LOCATE AND PUNISH THE OFFENDERS!

With the police authorities and the reputable druggists of Atlanta working hand in hand to suppress violations or evasions of the anti-narcotic law, it should not be difficult to weed out the isolated harpies who, from the vantage ground of back alleys and lost reputations, are coining a few miserable dollars at the cost of the lives and reasons of drug habitues, and the peace of the community.

The law which makes it a crime to sell certain powerful drugs save under stringent conditions, and which seeks to strike a blow at the spreading of these pitiable addictions, IS being violated and evaded. That fact is admitted. It would be futile to deny it, as long as the police continue to gather in negroes and whites dazed from drug influence, and recruited from the class too poor to send outside the state for their daily supply.

Local druggists and physicians of established reputation are ever ready to cooperate with the authorities in observing the law to its strictest letter. They can be depended upon to assist in weeding out the law-breakers.

For the others—the isolated exceptions—the cocaine and morphine blind tigers, they should be scourged out of business with as little compunction as would be wasted on a band of professional cutthroats and thieves. They are even more despicable than the latter gentry.

The murderer and the robber never yet found a willing victim. The illicit vender of narcotics has no difficulty in disposing of his wares to men and women whose moral sense is blunted by their addiction; and he does not scruple, for a beggarly pittance, to supply them with the poison which he knows will speed their progress to the madhouse and the grave.

We believe the Atlanta police can secure convictions and place stripes upon a few of these ambushed assassins of life and happiness without outside assistance. If they are not sufficiently acute, then expert aid should be imported.

THE INDEPENDENT FARMER.

If there is one vital fact the present financial and commercial situation has emphasized, it is the enviable position of the independent farmer.

No more forceful nor inspiring object lesson is available for impressing the truth so often reiterated by The Constitution. The man who is serene and unmoved in the face of price fluctuations and market depressions is the man who lives at home. The farmer who raises his own hog and hominy; the farmer with corn in his crib and hay in his barn loft; the farmer who is free from debt and with home supplies to fall back upon, can snap his finger at speculators and look with indifference even upon financial whirlwinds.

On the other hand, the farmer who has placed himself at the mercy of his creditors by indifference or carelessness in raising supplies for man and beast is just now in a rather awkward predicament. He has complicated the situation. He has, by adding the burden of his distressed cotton, probably pledged in advance, made more difficult the program of the southern cotton growers.

The Farmers' Union is not urging such members to hold their cotton when practically the entire proceeds are due on debts. It is urging those who can do so to hold. The banks of the south, where possible, are asked to assist in this program. The latest official bulletin of the South Carolina branch of the Farmers' Union makes this explanation:

"We desire to make it plain to all concerned that when we urge farmers to hold their cotton off the market, we are talking to that class of cotton growers who are in position to do so. At the outset we urged every farmer to arrange his debts first, as best he could, by storing his cotton or otherwise, and keep all weak cotton off the market."

The farmer who is forced to sell at 10 cents, when by holding he might secure 15 cents a pound for his cotton, is paying a heavy price for his want of preparedness.

The President's Future.

The eternal problem of what the nation shall do with its expresidents is likely to be agitated with new meaning and perplexity when the question shall bring itself squarely up against Theodore Roosevelt. His comparative youth, his non-sectional popularity, the uniqueness of his personality and the inscrutability of the times in which we live, inject novel elements into the situation which make the pointers of precedents and of history alike unavailing.

Dismissing the temptation to discuss the third-term movement, or other vocations which have been suggested for Mr. Roosevelt, The Brooklyn Eagle expresses some very complimentary and very truthful views concerning the president and his future relations with the nation, in the following language:

We think that, during many years to come, Theodore Roosevelt will influence the American people and will be influenced by them. We believe, when the trammels of his present office have dropped from him and when many of the complications and animosities which now affect him shall have been resolved, that he will be a great civic influence among the people, and the people themselves, in a variety of ways, will be a great inspiration, reassurance and education to him.

There never was a more vital, a more interesting, a more impressionable, a more studious or a more educable man in the executive office in modern times. Office will not be required for the discovery or for the demonstration or for the exercise of his qualities. Life will be full of opportunities for their exercise, and events in the United States may be said to have a fashion of finding avenues and opportunities, whether for presidents or for ex-presidents, to serve the people, whether in the shade or in the sun, to the full extent of the usefulness of a great man or of the need of the people for his service.

The day is past, it may be observed with gratitude, when newspapers of opposite political faith are charged with other than broadly human and patriotic motives when dissecting the virtues and failings of the chief executive of the nation, and no man has contributed to that new national viewpoint more than has Mr. Roosevelt.

[illegible] the present time, he is the center of the tiny whirlpool of adverse criticism, which we believe to be undeserved and which will wear itself out as its premises are shown to be false ones.

Whatever, then, may be the issue of the next few months; whether the third-term movement will claim him for its own or whether he returns to private life at the expiration of his present term—the president possesses an individuality which cannot be ignored as the nation presses forward to the solution of its present portentous problems or those which may be evolved by our future expansion, the nature of which is as yet a closed book.

Faults he has, of course, and in abundance. His enemies will likely admit they are of the redeeming and vanishing, rather than the malignant, variety. A certain impulsiveness of temper, an occasional impatience toward sincere criticism—human, understandable flaws which we believe the years will tame out of his blood. This conceded, the man's gentleness, his force, his honesty and his mental keenness, his broad grasp of national thought and conscience, must also be conceded.

Certainly, no man in the presidency, and few men in the public life of America, have laid hands so fearlessly and intelligently on as many national economic, sociological, moral and political phases. Next to his vigor, the distinguishing characteristic of the man is his amazing versatility, disproving the adage and showing that while he may be a jack at many trades, he is a slouch at none.

When it is remembered how few, how very few, men of this caliber are active in the public life of America today, it will be seen that Mr. Roosevelt, even though his temperament tolerated such procedure, would be an anomaly in private life. He will continue to react on his national environment, and that environment will, in turn, exert its broadening influence upon him, irrespective of the location of the man or the nature of the environment.

For Mr. Roosevelt typifies the America of today and tomorrow—not of yesterday.

The Story of the Black Hen.

Here is a boy's "witch-story," written up in The Journal of American Folk-Lore:

"His parents being dead he lived with an uncle. Every night after he had retired, a black hen fluttered about his head. He endured this night after night for some time, but at last, seeing that the mysterious performance was bound to continue indefinitely, he decided to tell his uncle and ask him what was to be done. So one morning he told him, and his uncle advised him to go to sleep with his hands and feet crossed. He did this and the hen never appeared again."

CAPITOL GOSSIP

In a letter addressed to H. E. Harman, president of the Southeastern Trade Press Association, and also to Donalson & Donalson, of Bainbridge, Chairman McLendon, speaking for the commission, declares: "It was not the purpose of the order of the commission in question, nor has this board authority, to prohibit newspapers or any other party from entering into contracts with railroad companies." This is in regard to newspaper advertising contracts. Continuing, he writes: "The purpose of this order is to prevent the issuance by railroad companies of transportation except upon a strict dollar-for-dollar basis."

This letter would seem to settle the question whether a newspaper has a right to exchange advertising for transportation, and the commission holds that this can be done when carried out on a strict business basis.

The letter in full is as follows:

Gentlemen: Your favor of November 7, relative to order of this commission governing the issuance of transportation by railroad companies, has been received.

Replying to your inquiry, I beg to advise that it was not the purpose of the order of the commission in question, nor has this board the authority, to prohibit newspapers or any other party from entering into contracts with railroad companies. The purpose of the order, however, is to prevent the issuance by railroad companies of any transportation except upon a strict dollar for dollar basis. If your company, or any other party, desires to contract with any railroad company in this state for work to be paid in transportation, you have that right, but the order of the commission prevents the railroad company from giving transportation upon this or any other basis in excess of the value of the consideration given in return. Yours very truly,

S. G. McLENDON,
Chairman.

Express Officials at the Capitol.

Morgan J. O'Brien, recently reelected president of the Southern Express Company; Morton F. Plant, chairman of the board of directors, both of New York, and T. W. Leary, first vice president of the company, whose home is in Atlanta, were among the callers at the office of the railroad commission yesterday. The trio had just returned from Savannah, where the annual meeting was held and the old officers reelected. They reported a most prosperous year. Chairman McLendon and Mr. O'Brien have been friends a long time. The visit was purely a social one, and no reference was made to the order recently issued by the commission cutting off "express franks" in Georgia after the 31st of December.

Changes in Classification.

The railroad commission of Georgia has issued circular No. 336, in which a number of minor changes in the freight and passenger tariff of the state are announced and become effective on November 20. The Statenville Railway Company and the Atlanta, Stone Mountain and Lithonia railroads are placed in freight class "D"; and the the first named is put into passenger class "E," and is allowed to charge 4 cents a mile. The classification on bread, when sent by express, is changed to read as follows: "Bread, pound rates, minimum 25c ——— B." New classifications on paper, pasteboard, boilers, cement burial vaults, housemoving outfits and the like are also announced in this circular, which is being sent out today.

Would Exempt City Servants.

Mayor Pro Tem. Quillian will introduce at the next meeting of the city council a resolution to memorialize the Georgia railroad commission to amend the "anti-pass" pronunciamento recently issued by that board in regard to "free passes" in so far as it applies to street cars, and allow the sanitary, water meter inspectors, policemen and firemen of the city to continue to ride free of charge. The heads of the various departments, whose men now ride free, estimate that it would cost the city in the neighborhood of $2,500 for each department if fares are paid by the city. Another question to come up before council in regard to the new city charter will be a pronounced compromise to do away with the police, water, Grady hospital and other boards, in which there is so much scrapping and politics, and let each department head run his own department.

Division Affirms Sentence.

Because there is a division among the six associate justices of the supreme court of Georgia on the case of James S. Yates of Decatur county, sentenced to serve a life term in the pen, following his conviction for murder, this sentence stands affirmed and no new trial will be given him.

Three judges on a side split the court. Three hold that the judge in charging the jury so stated the case as to mistake the defendant's contention and calculated to lead the jury to believe that the defendant had admitted that the homicide was an unlawful act. The law in cases of this kind is to the effect that the decision of the lower court must stand affirmed. This denies him a new trial, and, in consequence, he must serve the balance of his days in the pen.

MAJOR'S PLACE GIVEN TO CAPTAIN REICHMAN

Captain Carl Reichman, of the Seventeenth infantry, formerly stationed at Fort McPherson, but now in Cuba, who was recently in the limelight on account of a personal letter made public in which it was declared he had criticized the war department, has been promoted to a majorship, according to orders received by the department of the gulf. It is claimed that in this letter Captain Reichman charged that he was being discriminated against on account of his German extraction. He has been ordered to New York to join the Twenty-fourth regiment, to which he has been assigned.

SNOW MEN.

(Reply to James Whitcomb Riley's "The Old Days.")

Don't you wish again to be Glad as when together we
Made men from high heaps of snow
In dear remembered Long Ago?
Down hills speeding in box sleigh,
Clapping hands and loud hooray,
Merry faces, all aglow,
Dashed by sleet, and flakes of snow.
Did we mind cold hands and feet,
Slipping on the frozen street?
Life to us such pleasure, then,
Don't you wish it now as when
We made men from heaps of snow
In dear remembered Long Ago?

Literary News and Comment

Delightful Trifling.

LITTLE DINNERS WITH THE SPHINX. By Richard Le Gallienne. Sugar-coated, humorous melancholy is the keynote to this delightful little volume of stories and sketches from Le Gallienne. The man lays a supersensitive, delicate hand on the finest of human emotions, his eerie thought taking unexpected by-paths into charming and unconventional channels. The "Death of the Poet" will give the students of the so-called "artistic temperament" a glance at their favorite topic from a new and pathetic angle, showing, as it does, the weaver of the world's finer thoughts isolated from mankind, living in a kind of fairyland, yet dimly and grotesquely conscious of the bonds which holds up all in common. "Dream Documents" is the sort of essay-story that will appeal to all lovers who have dreamed dreams doomed, by their very beauty and folly, to evaporate into thin air, leaving as the only tangible evidences a sheaf of love letters, whose weird and burning passion shows in queer contrast to the sober, exacting light of common sense. All of the sketches are of the sort to leave a sweet, wholesome taste in the mouth, albeit they carry a vein of sadness that is almost indefinible. (Publication by Moffatt; Yard & Co., New York.)

One of Mr. Hewlett's Best.

THE STOOPING LADY. By Maurice Hewlett. The charm of Maurice Hewlett, his vivid imagination, his gift for fiction narrative of the sort that carries conviction, his deft and dainty character delineation, show to splendid advantage in this latest book. The scene is laid in the England of 1800 and the plot is variegated with stirring incident and a very tender love story, delightfully told, with due restraint, as is the wont of this writer. There is excitement, too, but not of the melodramatic kind. Mr Hewlett may be depended upon to steer clear of the banal, and to find new and discriminative vehicles for the expression of the fundamental emotions. To delve into the plot would be to discount the pleasure of the reader, and the followers of Maurice Hewlett need the services of no pilot or advocate in finding his excellencies or arriving at a due appreciation of them. The book is the best he has done. (Publication by Dodd, Mead & Co., New York.)

With the Strenuous One.

CAMPING AND TRAMPING WITH ROOSEVELT. By John Burroughs. The naturalist whom President Roosevelt has given the distinction of being the most accurate of his tribe in the country, distinguishes the president, in turn, as the "most vital man on the continent," intimating that the executive vitality shames anything that even the entire planet has to offer. It is unreserved, enthusiastic incense that Mr. Burroughs burns at the presidental shrine. No half way adulation with him! He touches on his experiences with the first citizen in Yellowstone Park and around Oyster Bay, showing the marvelous, many-sided phases of the man's nature, sketching his ability to spring agilely and with grace from one subject to the other, paleontology or politics, literature or natural history. One gains a forceful and vivid picture of Mr. Roosevelt from the frank homage of his naturalist friend, though not all of the anecdotes are new, and the testimony might be viewed by the carping as that of a prejudiced witness. (Publication by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

When Is a Man a Coward?

THE COURAGE OF BLACKBURN BLAIR. By Eleanor Talbot Kinkead. A powerful story of life in Kentucky, timed in the days of the Goebel tragedy. The central theme is the public sentiment which brands a man with the mark of cowardice who will not fight under a certain provocation, regardless of circumstances. The possibilities will be caught at a glance, and it may be said that the author has not neglected them, though in stronger hands they might have been developed with slightly more emphatic dramatic effect. There is an alluring admixture of romance, sufficiently well sustained in the conventional style. (Publication by Moffat, Yard & Co., New York.)

Love at College.

THE KENTON PINES. By C. B. Burleigh. College life and college fun, of the rampant, wholesome kind, runs through this story. The man who looks back with wistfulness to days spent in the study room and on the campus as among the happiest in his life, will find plenty of material herein to stir reminiscence. There is a more or less exciting love interest in the story also. (Publication by Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Company, Boston.)

A Mild Moral Tonic.

THE OLD PEABODY PEW. By Kate Douglas Wiggin. The republication of this story, with illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens, for holiday purposes, was a happy thought. One will not be kept awake over the intensity of the plot, but the elements of simple and kindly human nature abound in sufficient measure to keep the reader in a mild mental and moral glow. (Publication by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

The Carl Schurz Reminiscences.

REMINISCENCES OF CARL SCHURZ. Immigrant, toiler, soldier, patriot, publicist, the career of Carl Schurz shines out as one of the most conspicuous in American history, a true type of the self-made man, an illustration of the bewildering and truly dramatic possibilities of life in the world's greatest republic. When his reminiscences appeared serially in McClure's Magazine they constituted, undoubtedly, the most popular feature of that magazine so far as the interest of the more serious-minded reader was concerned. Delving with the touch of personal familiarity into one of the most vital epochs of the nation's history, giving enlightening views on the character of men who swayed the destiny of America, lifting portions of the veil hung over the policies of the country in time of crisis, breathing a patriotism which did not, nevertheless, blind itself to weaknesses deserving criticism, the reminiscences comprise an invaluable addition to the library of the casual or the professional student. They are issued now in the form of two volumes, handsomely printed and illustrated. As the personality of the writer stands out with a uniqueness that is all its own, the impressions of his keenly analytical mind in permanent form make a document which lifts itself far above the ordinary output of contemporaneous literature. (Publication by the McClure Company, New York.)

More Teddy Bears.

THE ROOSEVELT BEARS. By Seymour Eaton. This book is a sequel to "The Travels and Adventures of the Roosevelt Bears," and completes the story of the tour of Teddy B and Teddy G from Colorado to Washington. The third volume will report in jingle and picture the tour of the Teddy Bears abroad. (Publication by Edward Stern & Co.)

The Romance of Sheba.

MAGDA, QUEEN OF SHEBA. Translated by Mrs. John Van Vorst. The romance of King Solomon and the queen of Sheba has piqued the interest and curiosity of students of secular as well as sacred history. The glamor surrounding the wisest man in history and his relations with the beautiful woman who came out of Ethiopia for a glance of the world as it then existed, constitute one of the most entertaining speculative themes open to the imaginative or the scholastic mind. Mrs. Van Vorst has translated from the French the story of Solomon and Magda, the queen of Sheba. The narrative, which is said to have been one of the cherished literary possessions of Ethiopia, was originally translated from the obscure Abyssnian (or Gheze) tongue into French by M. Hugues le Roux. The claim is made that the original manuscript was intrusted in 1904 by Menelik, king of Abyssinia, to the Frenchman for the purposes of translation, and after it had been returned to the swarthy ruler from a series of long and interesting excursions into various countries. More or less skepticism will, of course, surround the authenticity of so remarkable a recital, but the English rendition bears evidences strongly coinciding with what light is thrown on the subject from sacred and profane sources. The visit of Magda to Solomon, the glory of Solomon's court, the luxury and extravagance which tempted men from their homes, the marvelous astuteness of the great ruler, are told graphically. Magda promptly becomes one of the most devoted admirers of the king. If the way of the average man with the average maid is slightly interesting, the way of the sage of history with the beauty of his day must possess an intensified charm. The culmination of their relations, the birth of a son after her return to Ethiopia, the return of David to visit his father, and subsequent developments are narrated with skill, and apparent fidelity to the original text. The book is certainly worth while, though it need not carry conviction to the man or woman who prefers retaining their own conception of the story. (Publication by Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York.)

Patrick Henry, Reconstructed.

THE TRUE PATRICK HENRY. By George Morgan. One reads the vivid portrait Mr. Morgan has drawn of the great American patriot, embodying his flaws and his virtues, and reflecting with a fair accuracy the spirit of his times, and is reminded of the words:

"A soaring nature, ballasted by sense,
Wit without wrinkles or pretense."

The country knows little enough about the great men who molded its policies and opinions in the early days, despite the industry of the historian. We depend more upon tradition, upon scraps of legend and upon more or less happy phrases handed down in the common vernacular. The effort of Mr. Morgan has been to reproduce Patrick Henry as he really existed, not concealing his faults, but showing that they did, as in all great men, most decisively give way to his virtues. There is sufficient of anecdote and narrative in the book to give it the air of romance, and to redeem it from the dryness of the conventional biography. (Publication by the J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia.)

A Plea for the Open.

DAYS OFF AND OTHER DIGRESSIONS. By Henry Van Dyke. The joy and the health and the purity of the open air are the principal compensations that Dr. Van Dyke finds in his "days off." Fishing, hunting, riding or loafing lazily through the fields, he finds plenty of opportunity to "invite his soul" and to freshen his wits and renovate his viewpoint at the universal font of nature. There is nothing dialectic or "forthputting" in Dr. Van Dyke's suggestions. He is not the sort of physician who throws you down and makes you take your medicine, nolens volens. He simply shows you how wholesome, how sweet to the palate that medicine is—and you want to gulp it straightway. (Publication by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

Literature on "Thanksgiving."

THANKSGIVING. Edited by Robert Haven Schauffler. As the day of the turkey and the chrysanthemum and the football hero—alias Thanksgiving—fast approaches, interest in the literature that pertains to the joyous occasion comes to a natural focus. Mr. Schauffler has compiled a volume of prose and verse selections, historical, religious, patriotic, poetic and otherwise, shedding light on this great American festival. The book is suitable for purposes of reading at home or in school. (Publication by Moffatt, Yard & Co., New York.)

SAID WIFE WAS TREATED JUST LIKE A "SORRY DOG"

At last retribution has overtaken Will Hendrix, a white man, who lives at 554 Simpson street, and he will spend the next thirty days working in the city chaingang as punishment for the way in which he has treated his wife.

For a long time Hendrix has been abusing his wife and he has been arrested several times for it, but he always managed to get off with a light fine because his wife begged so hard for him, but retribution finally came when Mrs. Hendrix's neighbors took her part.

It was the unanimous opinion of the women who live near Hendrix that he treated his wife as if she was a "sorry dog." Those were the very words they used in police court.

It was shown that Hendrix had worked but six days in that many months, and that he went home nearly every night and cursed and abused his wife, calling her vile names, coupled with blasphemous oaths. He was rarely ever sober.

"Oh, it's something terrible the way that man treats his good wife," exclaimed a portly woman who lives near the Hendrix home. "Why, I don't believe there is a sorry dog in the town that is treated worse. And she just takes it all, begging him to be good to her. We are just tired of it, and we want the police and the law to fix him."

The recorder proceeded to "fix him" with thirty days' hard labor for the city. He turned to Mrs. Hendrix and said:

"And I don't want you coming to me to beg that I let him out, for I am not going to do it. You have begged him off enough and the limit has been reached."

Mrs. Hendrix merely bowed her head.

WANTS ONE GOVERNMENT FOR CITY AND COUNTY

Ex-Councilman Eldred S. Lumpkin, of the third ward, who made one of the ablest city officials the city ever had, has two suggestions to make in connection with the appointment of a commission to revise the city charter, as proposed recently by a council committee. He says that the city and county should be consolidated under one government, and that the city should insure all stores and residences under a regular system of assessments as is now made for taxation.

"I believe that the city of Atlanta is large enough," says Mr. Lumpkin, "and so large a portion of the county of Fulton that there is now no longer any use for two separate forms of government. The whole county could be incorporated if necessary. We could get along with one tax collector, one chief of police, no sheriff, only one set of clerks and collectors, and other offices could be done away with. The expense both to the county and the city could be greatly reduced and at the same time the people be saved much time and trouble in paying taxes, registering, etc. The taxation would not be materially changed and property in the country could be so assessed as to make it equitable. Atlanta is nearly all of Fulton county both as to taxes and population and I can see no use in having all the public business transactions doubled at a heavy cost to the taxpayer and a great deal of unnecessary trouble and worry to the people.

"The commission can take this matter under consideration when it investigates the feasibility of revising the city's charter. The work will take some time and the end aimed at will be to bring relief and benefit to the public.

"I also believe that the plan, already adopted by some cities, of insuring property against loss by fire is a good one. The plan is for the taxpayer to pay the city a fire premium when he pays his taxes. The city can easily make a fire assessment when it makes a tax assessment. This would save to Atlanta something like $500,000, money which is now taken from the citizens and sent off. The money woud all go into the city's treasury and be kept and used at home."

The ideas advanced by Mr. Lumpkin may go before the commission if council decides to create such a body. Mr. Lumpkin served in the council a few years ago from the third ward and was a very active and energetic member. He has been urged several times to make the race again, but he has declined because of his not having the time to spare for such public duties. He may be induced to become a candidate next year.

NO SEAT, NO FARE, SAYS THE COURT

Judge Russell Says Railways Should Seat All Passengers.

"No seat, no fare," is the argument used by Judge Richard B. Russell, of the Georgia state court of appeals, in a decision written out by him in the case of Lyndon v. the Georgia Railway Company. Judge Russell declared that a common carrier does not fully comply with its legal obligations until it furnishes every passenger taken aboard with a seat.

This case went into court upon a suit filed by Dr. Oscar Lyndon, of Atlanta, who, in suing for alleged injuries, declares that he was a passenger on a Marietta street car and for lack of seats was compelled to stand. He claims that while thus standing the car gave a sudden jerk and he was thrown violently about, hurting himself so badly as to receive permanent injuries.

While the court recognizes the fact that the question of fares does not enter into the argument of the case, it takes the position that the absence of a seat strengthens the case in so far as the recovery of damages for the lack of a seat is concerned.

Poems in Marble

Purest gleaming marble from the great Carrara and Castilian quarries shaped and chiseled into forms that have grace in every line, every curve.

Dianas, Venuses, Mercuries, Loves, Nymphs and Graces, fair women of poetry and song, famous groups of mythology, the noble sombreness of Dante, the imperial strength of Napoleon, the stern saintliness of Savonarola—these are some of the subjects that have inspired the sculptors to these petrified poems.

For a presentation, what more beautiful, more filled with the combined charms of sentiment and art.

The sizes, like the subjects, vary infinitely, affording choice of a piece suitable for any setting.

COLONEL GOODE GOES TO BEYOND

Was One of Atlanta's Most Prominent Builders.

Colonel Samuel Watkins Goode, for many years one of the most prominent real estate men in Atlanta, died yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock, after an illness extending over several years, and which finally resulted in a stroke of paralysis last Monday.

Although ill health compelled Colonel Goode to give up business six years ago, he is remembered as one of the most progressive citizens of the city, with a long list of friends, and his death will be deeply deplored. He combined with the finest business qualifications a most genial and courteous bearing, and made friends of all with whom he came in contact.

Colonel Goode was born in Stewart county, Georgia, in 1847. He came of a long line of distinguished ancestry, Professor G. Brown Goode, of the Smithsonian institute in Washington, tracing the family history back to the fourteenth century in the west of England. Colonel Goode's grandfather, Samuel W. Goode, of Washington, Ga., was a very wealthy man, and Colonel Goode's father, Dr. Samuel W. Goode, was a physician of great prominence and large property. He died in 1860, when Colonel Goode was but 13 years old, but being a man of most scholarly attainments had made great impress upon the mind and character of his son, who was far advanced in his studies.

Colonel Goode's mother was left with eight children just as the war came on, but she was a woman of remarkable type, and proved herself equal to the great responsibilities which had been thrust upon her. She had the management of a plantation and a hundred slaves in Stewart county.

Colonel Goode became a cadet at the Georgia Military institute at Marietta, and left there with the cadets under Colonel F. W. Capers to take part in the war. He was in the trenches around Atlanta, and was wounded in the shoulder by a minnie ball while fighting near what is now the Boulevard. When he recovered from this wound he was assigned to duty in the engineering supply department, with Major Nathaniel Green, who was afterwards president of the Lebanon law school in Tennessee.

After the war Colonel Goode resumed his studies, became a teacher of considerable prominence, traveled extensively, finally studied law in the law school at Albany, N. Y., which is now a part of Union college. He practiced first in Savannah and then moved to Eufauia, Ala., where, associated with Hon. Sterling B. Toney, he did a very large and lucrative practice.

Colonel Goode moved to Atlanta in 1881 and bought a real estate business which had been owned by Joel Hurt, and later formed a law partnership with General Clifford L. Anderson. He did a large business, and was uniformly successful. Many very large deals were handled by his firm, Samuel W. Goode & Co. He was identified with numerous public enterprises, and was one of the men who did much to make Atlanta the city it is today.

Colonel Goode's close application to business finally impaired his health to such an extent that he retired. The news of his death will bring regret to the large circle of friends, who, for twenty years, were associated with him in the business and social life of Atlanta.

Colonel Goode was married in 1872 to Miss Jennie Kendall, of Eufaula, who died in 1875, leaving two little daughters, who are now Mrs. Henry Porter Williams, of Charleston, and Mrs. Augustus Milton Anderson, of New York. In 1882 Colonel Goode was married to Miss Lizzie Stone, of Kentucky, who survives him. Their children are: Mrs. Isaac Hardeman, of Charlotte and Miss Julia Goode.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 17 East Pine street, tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, and will be conducted by General Clement A. Evans, assisted by Rev. C. B. Wilmer. The interment will be in Oakland. Colonel Goode was a member of the First Methodist church, and at one time served as a steward.

CURSED WHEN HIS NAP IN CAR WAS DISTURBED

Tinner Gets Heavily Fined for His Conduct in a Trolley Car.

Because he was awakened from a nap in a trolley car and asked for his fare, C. E. Pass, a tinner, got angry and cursed the conductor. He was arraigned in the recorder's court yesterday morning and fined $25.75.

Conductor Crabtree testified that Pass got on an East Decatur car at the corner of Pryor and Alabama streets Thursday afternoon, and being overloaded with liquor, he went to sleep. When he was awakened for his fare he cursed in the presence of ladies and refused to hand over the nickel. He was put off the car at the corner of Hill and Fair streets.

Pass said if he cursed he did not remember it.

His employer begged that he be let off light, but the recorder said that a man who cursed where ladies were ought to be heavily punished, and he made the fine $25.75.

THE COLD WAVE IS BROKEN

Forecaster Marbury Promises Fair and Warmer Weather Today.

The backbone of the cold wave is broken. It will be warmer today. This is the news given out by the weather bureau, with the statement that the frost of yesterday morning was one of the heaviest, if not the heaviest, this year.

Friday morning was the coldest of the cold snap days, and the early morning hours were filled with shivers. As the day advanced the sunshine made it more pleasant, until along toward 2 o'clock the mercury had climbed as high as 55. With the approach of night it began to descend again, but was not nearly so cold as Thursday night.

The weather will continue fair.

DOLLAR CERTIFICATES WILL BE ISSUED TODAY

Atlanta Clearing House Decides to Meet Demand for Smaller Currency.

In order to meet the growing demand for smaller currency the trustees of the Atlanta Clearing House Association will on today issue for circulation $1 clearing house certificates.

The plan is calculated to remove to a considerable degree the tightness which is now existing in regard to small currency. This statement does not mean that there will be more clearing house certificates issued than formerly intended, but that instead of issuing the higher denominations, the association will substitute the $1 certificates. The $1 certificates are to be signed by C. E. Currier, of the Atlanta National bank; W. L. Peel, of the Maddox-Rucker Banking Company, and R. J. Lowry, of the Lowry National bank.

WANT GAME EXCEPTED IN DRAWN FOWL LAW

The Board of Health Discovers That Council Left Out Two Important Words.

The board of health once more tackled the drawn fowl ordinance yesterday afternoon.

The board of health has tackled the drawn fowl ordinance lots of times in the past and it took many tackles and much bucking of the center with the city council before the ordinance was ever passed.

Now it has been discovered that the ordinance left out two words which the board of health had put in. These two words were "Except game." As the ordinance now stands it is unlawful to sell quail that have not been drawn.

The board decided to pass a resolution requesting council to insert the two words in the ordinance so that game will be excepted.

WILL ASK COUNCIL'S AID IN PULL FOR CONVENTION

Atlanta will make a determined effort to bring the next national prohibition convention to this city, and as one of the steps in the furtherance of this move it will have a committee to appear before council at the regular meeting Monday afternoon, when that body will be urged to send a representation, together with one from the chamber of commerce, to Chicago for the 1907 convention to be held in the Auditorium hotel on Wednesday, November 20, the local delegation to do all in its power toward bringing the next meeting here.

The 1908 convention will be held in the last week of May or the first week of June and it will mean the coming of 3,000 visitors.

President Pope, the directors of the chamber of commerce, with many of the leading prohibitionists of the city, will appear before council Monday and it is understood that Mayor Joyner will read a message urging that council send at least two members to Chicago. Mr. Pope and Alderman Quillian will be two Atlantans to go, and as a result of the meeting Monday afternoon it is thought that a large delegation will be formed.

DR. FRENCH WILL SPEAK TO RAILROAD MEN SUNDAY

The railroad men of Atlanta will have another special privilege at the railroad Young Men's Christian Association rooms Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the address of Rev. Jthn Stewart French, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, south, who is to speak especially to them at that time. Dr. French is recognized everyhwere as a man of great strength as a preacher, and Sunday after Sunday draws one of the largest congregations in the city to his own church. Railroad men will no doubt, in large numbers, avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing him.

Men in all lines of service are invited, and others not in railroad service, who are interested in the work of the railroad association, will receive a cordial greeting.

The rooms, warm and comfortable, and very homelike, are open during the whole afternoon, and will be found a pleasant place, with congenial companionship, to spend the time.

POSTERS SENT TO CONSUL

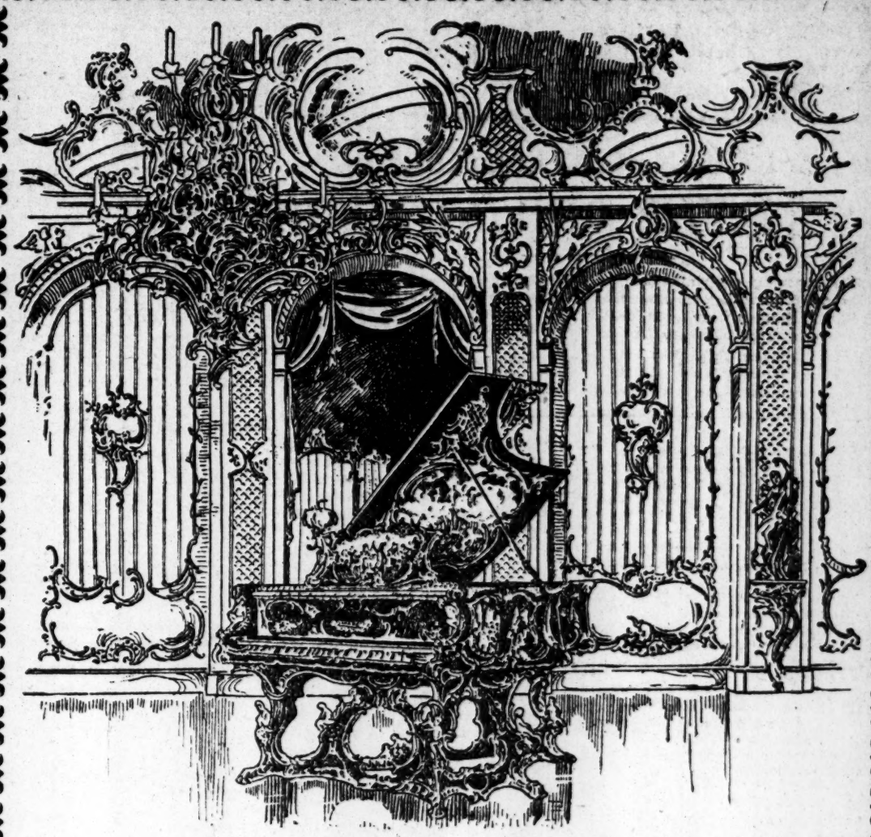

Gainesville Parent Still Seeks His Lost Son.

Gainesville, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—J. T. Telford Wednesday sent to the American consul at Zurich, Switzerland, and the representative of this government at Endelberg, a package of posters containing a portrait and description of his son, Harold W. Telford, who is thought to have been lost in the Alps during the summer. A reward is offered for information of the young man.

Last July 29 he left Endelberg for a mountain trip, and since that day his family here have been unable to hear a word from him. He was of unusually correct habits and careful conduct. He graduated from the university at Athens three years ago, and at Harvard in 1905. He had been a student at engineering at Zurich, and was expected home here in October.

TRIED TO RUSH STREET WORK

Council Committee on Streets Acts on Important Matter.

The street committee of the city council acted upon some important and interesting matters yesterday afternoon.

Councilman Terrell offered a resolution for the commissioner of public works to lay the sidewalks and curbing on certain streets in the first ward, which were passed up several months ago, and charge the cost to the Georgia Granite Company, which had the contract.

W. H. Patterson, president of the company, stated that never in the history of the city had all the sidewalks and curbing been laid that were passed up in any one year. He said his company was now working as fast as it could, and he asked that in future such work be done in some regular order.

Mr. Terrell withdrew his resolution.

There was a very animated discussion over a petition for the removal of a fence and tracks of the Southern Railway Company at the corner of Smith and Stevens streets. This matter had been before council, and under instructions, the city attorney made a case in the recorder's court. The street committee decided ot refer the matter back to council, with the statement that when the first action was taken it was not known there was a city ordinance giving the railroad company the right to close up lots on which streets were said to exist.

On motion of Councilman Taylor the committee voted unanimously to pave with chert a short alley on the lot of the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons, corner of Gilmer and Butler streets.

To Mrs. Godfrey.

To Mr. and Mrs. Bucknell.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bucknell were the guests of honor at the buffet supper given last night by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stearnes, when fifty guests were delightfully entertained. They were invited at 8 o'clock, and received by the lovely hostess in the drawing room.

In the receiving party were Mr. and Mrs. Bucknell, Mrs. George Russ and Mr. Harry Whitfield, of New York. The decorations throughout the house combined palms, chrysanthemums and roses, the drawing room having vases of Killarney roses on all sides. In the hallway and library were yellow chrysanthemums and ferns, the same decorations prevailing in the dining room, where a substantial and delicious supper was served. The table had as central decoration a large basket filled with yellow chrysanthemums, the handle tied with bows of yellow tulle.

Asparagus fern trailed from the lace centerpiece, and encircled the base of the silver candlestick, their lighted tapers showing through yellow shades.

The bonbons and cakes were in yellow, and the ices were frozen in a design of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Stearnes was beautiful in a princess gown of black net embroidered in jet sequins, the shoulders and sleeves draped in point lace.

Mrs. Bucknell was a picture of loveliness in a Parisian toilet of white chiffon cloth, embroidered. Mrs. George Russ wore white chiffon cloth trimmed in white lace.

Mr. and Mrs. Bucknell have been the recipients of many attentions since their arrival in the city, and it is a source of regret to their many friends that they will spend the winter in Florida.

Miss Hawkins wore a white silk gown with a suggestion of black, and Miss Patterson wore a pale yellow broadcloth gown and a cream lace hat trimmed with plumes.

Japanese Party.

A unique and beautiful entertainment yesterday was the bridge party given by Mrs. Jack Hayes in compliment to Miss Augusta Garrett, when picturesque Japan had been drawn upon for endless artistic detail.

Japanese pictures, prints, tapestries, and embroideries decorated the apartment, and chrysanthemums were appropriately used in oriental vases and bowls. The score cards were Japanese picture postals, and the prizes were a Japanese embroidered waist and handkerchief. They were won by Mrs. Robert Davis and Miss Bessie Woodward. Miss Garrett was presented a dainty Japanese souvenir.

MANY MEASURES RECOMMENDED

Many Resolutions Are Adopted of Considerable Importance.

Norfolk, Va., November 15.—The American Federation of Labor today approved the annual report of its secretary, Mr Morrison, which showed a balance on hand October 1, 1907, of $127,910, this being an increase of $19,369 over the year 1906.

The federation adopted resolutions as follows:

Directing its legislative committee to use every influence to bring about action in the sixtieth congress for the increase of postoffice clerks' pay.

Starting a campaign to expedite and systematize the regulation of convict labor.

Calling upon congress for a small parcel post law as a relief from the "express company monopolies."

Authorizing the executive council to deal with the question of appointing organizers to teach immigrants in their own language the ideas of unionism and ask that the "theatrical syndicates" be included as amenable under the anti-trust laws, "in restraint of trade."

Resolutions calling upon congress to give navy yard employees injured in pursuit of their duties the same remedy at law in damages as employed by persons in private employ and those calling for the legalizing of Saturday half holidays for navy yard employees in July, August and September of each year, were referred back to committees for revision, so as to include all classes of government employees.

The federation rejected the resolution calling for the building and repairing of all government-owned vessels in navy yards.

New resolutions presented call for twelve hours' work out of each twenty-four by all masters, pilots and engineers on American vessels; an investigation of the telegraph companies; federal officials to have charge of all national campaign funds; states to defray all primary election expenses; debarring from labor unions all not qualified to vote; election of all judges, state and federal, by the people; building and maintenance of a federation sanitarium; every possible war against the American Tobacco Company; to abolish objectionable efficiency cards in navy yards; compelling all railroad and transportation tickets be made interchangeable; preventing injunctions against ticket scalpers and calling for federal law against any combination producing artificial scarcity in white paper for newspapers.

B. Haggatt. As a result of the strong turn of affairs, the delegations friendly to the governor, numbering between thirty and thirty-five, walked out of the convention. For a time it was thought that a rump convention would be held, but finally the bolters gave out the announcement that they would attempt no gathering of their own, but that a delegation would be sent to the national convention to oppose the seating of delegates from Alaska. The regulars remained in the convention and elected W. T. Perkins, of Nome, temporary chairman, and W. T. E. M. Culberson, temporary secretary.

OF, FOR, BY AND ABOUT WOMEN

Conducted by ISMA DOOLY.

A "Portia" in Paris.

The woman lawyer is no longer a novelty in the history of woman's progress in America, for the Portia, young and old, is to be seen in all the courts, and now in all sections and vicinities.

She is no longer the merely clerical lawyer, but pleads her cases, and, winning out, cares not whether her success is attributed to woman's wit or woman's intuition, though she realizes that it will never be called woman's judgment. Men are willing to allow women any attribute, but they still draw the line at the idea of their having judgment.

Paris claims a Portia now who is not only a skillful practitioner, but a noted beauty. She is said to be only twenty years of age.

An international press report describes Mlle. Helen Miropolsky as follows:

"Even before she was brought into prominence on the occasion of taking her oath of office she was celebrated for her beauty, grace and elegance. Her large dark eyes, fresh complexion, tall, well-shaped figure and exquisite chic in the barrister's toga, with her masses of black hair surmounted by the biretta created a sensation in the court, and it was speedily filled by a large crowd of pleaders and lawyers, who were drawn to witness this unaccustomed sight—a beautiful girl of twenty deliberately entering the lists against men learned in the intricacies of the law.

"When Mlle. Miropolsky raised a graceful hand and said in answer to the usual formula, 'I swear,' the members of the bar present declared that she had an intensely melodious voice and all the grace and seductiveness that accompany oratory.

"The young lady advocate's success was so great that two other notable figures among her young colleagues who were taking the oath almost escaped notice. These were M. Gounod, grandson of the composer of 'Faust,' and M. Marcel Cruppi, son of the famous Maitre Cruppi, who has played such a leading part in many a cause celebre of recent years, including the Castellane divorce case."

Mrs. J. R. Gregory, the Artist.

A life-size portrait of General John B. Gordon, the work of Mrs. J. R. Gregory, of Atlanta, has been purchased by the Confederate Veterans of Alabama and was presented by them to the state at their reunion in Montgomery this week. Appropriate ceremonies accompanied the unveiling and presentation of the picture, which will hang in the state capitol in Montgomery, and which is pronounced by all his comrades as a splendid likeness of the distinguished general.

Other portraits illustrative of Mrs. Gregory's achievement as an artist hang in the state capitol of Georgia.

Southern Dishes.

STUFFED PEPPER SALAD.

Remove the top and seeds from a dozen sweet peppers, throw into cold water and soak about an hour. Chop white celery rather fine. Mix with it a few leaves of cress, sprinkle over a few drops of onion juice and stand aside for fifteen or twenty minutes. When ready to serve, dish on lettuce leaves, pour over French dressing.

JAPANESE SALAD.

Cut two warm potatoes into blocks and add two tablespoonfuls of onion juice. Cover with French dressing, garnish with sardines and cress. Serve very cold. This may be garnished with beets in each.

SPANISH SALAD.

In Mexico the banana is employed in almost a dozen ways unknown to us. This peculiar and novel combination is made of bananas and large English walnuts. Select if possible the red bananas which are much superior to the yellow sort; still if not obtainable the other fruit will do. Cut into slices with a silver knife, shell sufficient English walnuts to make one-third the quantity of bananas and chop fine. Mix the fruit and the nuts lightly together and heap carefully on fresh crisp lettuce leaves. Make mayonnaise dressing seasoned sharply with cayenne pepper and pour over the whole. This is a fine salad for any function.

STUFFED TOMATO SALAD.

This is a simple salad and may be used for a luncheon course. Select ripe but firm tomatoes of equal size, scald and peel, cover with cracked ice and salt and let stand until they become slightly frozen on the outside. Remove them from the ice one at a time and with a vegetable scoop take out the center. Cut tender stalks of celery into bits and mix with a French dressing. Fill the tomato shells with this mixture and place generous spoonfuls of mayonnaise on the top of each. Serve ice cold and garnish with capers and slices of hard boiled eggs.

The Model Schools.

At the recent meeting of the State Federation of Clubs at Tifton, Ga., there was no more interesting feature than the exhibit made by the children of the model schools, these schools having been established at Danielsville, at Cass Station and in Floyd county by club women. Their establishment marked the first practical application of the principle of industrial training for the children of the rural districts, and anteceded the work of any other organization in the state working in the interest of educational improvement or progress.

The exhibits showed the combined training of the head and hand in the very artistic furniture, ornaments, baskets and needlework making up the display. There was (in miniature) the hand-made furniture, rugs woven of native grasses, baskets both useful and ornate, bags of all kinds, while a tiny bed, the work of a little board, had its sheets, pillow cases, etc., of linen, beautifully hemstitched by a little girl.

Another exhibit consisted of a little house, two stories in height, the furniture all made by the boys, while the rugs, mats, hangings and accessories were made by the girls.

Nearby was a creditable exhibit of preserves, jellies and canned goods, demonstrating that the boys as well as the girls were interesting themselves in the matter of culinary art.

The model school exhibits were under the direction of Mrs. Eugene Heard, of Elberton; Miss M. L. Johnson and Mrs Nellie Peters Black.

Interesting Visitor.

Interesting visitors to the city this week were Mr. W. B. King, of New York, the well-known illustrator, and his lovely bride. They were the guests of the former's aunt, Mrs. Edward Van Winkle, and had spent several weeks in Atlanta before coming to this city.

Notable among Mr. King's later illustrations was that entitled, "No, not insane, just engaged!" The picture was that of a young couple in fond embrace, in a smoky room, while rushing in the door was a fireman, announcing their danger from fire.

Mr. King has four illustrations in the current issue of Scribner's, and is a regular contributor to Harper's and publications of similar note. He is recognized as one of the foremost among the illustrators of the day, and has already taken initial steps in an assuredly brilliant career.

"Gran" Must Wear a Cap.

The cap is apparently returning to favor. It is making its reappearance in various attractive forms for morning and evening wear, both for quite young people as well as their elders. Fashion is diplomatic. She thus makes sure of popularizing the cap, which has been neglected even by the elderly. If it is ever to be restored it will have to be done through the agency of the young. Nowadays, grandmothers will wear nothing that does not become their granddaughters. When they see how pretty young faces look under mob caps, older women are sure to adopt them, though they now declare them "frumpish," and having once got them back, perhaps elderly women will not be eager to let them go again.

A Birthday Party.

A clever birthday surprise was planned for a young girl on her twentieth birthday by a friend. Twenty girls were invited. Each girl sent a little gift appropriate for the year for which they stood, yet adapted to the girl's present needs.

For one year old a neat little package old-fashioned candy stick; another for two years old had written on it, "She likes to make (mud) pies," had in it a little apron; three, "She has a tea party," was a little cup and saucer; on the package which represented her fourth birthday was marked, "She has a place at the table"; it contained a napkin ring; for her fifth birthday the gift was a little purse containing twenty pennies and this inscription, "She spends her first pennies"; a sack was the present for her sixth birthday, "She goes to parties."

"She learns to write;" a pretty penholder was given her for her seventh birthday, and for her eighth, "She has a sweet tooth," was a box of candy; nine, "She loves pretty ribbons," was several yards of ribbon; a little thimble was the gift for her tenth birthday. "She learns to mend"; the present for her eleventh birthday was a box of stationery with "She receives letters" written on it; for the twelfth a piece of music was given, with this sentence, "She learns to play the piano"; 13, "She is athletic," a pair of Indian clubs; 14, "She loves flowers," a dainty vase; 15, "She is fond of tennis," an ornamental racquet; 16, "She loves to read," a book; 17, "She does embroidery," a work bag; 18, "She likes to be dressed up," clasp pins; 19, "She dresses her hair high," an ornamental comb; 20, "She is a full-fledged young lady," a fan.

President Roosevelt, Wall Street and the Country

Every American, whether he is a capitalist, a salaried man or a wage earner, should read this most timely and powerful article by Sereno S. Pratt. It reveals actual facts! Preceding this is a reliable statement of Roosevelt's attitude by the well-known journalist, Lindsay Denison, entitled "Where the President Stands"—written as the result of careful investigation and the author's unusually favorable opportunities to learn the President's views from those most intimate with him and his administration in Washington. Not to read these articles will mean to be out of touch with the most-talked of magazine feature of the closing year.

Exiles from Broadway, by Vance Thompson, is in this popular author's happiest vein and fairly bubbles over with Christmas spirit. It describes the yule-tide festivities of American sojourners in Paris, reviewing and illustrating, from photographs, the Parisian pleasures and pastimes of the Christmas season.

Joseph Pulitzer. A close-range pen picture of every-day life and characteristics of "the man who revolutionized American journalism," by Hartley Davis.

The Second Generation and the Trusts. Will the sons of our "trust-made money-lords" wage the same hard battle as their rugged fathers, or will they "shirk the commercial strife, and, retiring to their private estates, form an interesting—perhaps a useless aristocracy?" Read the answer in the December Broadway.

Christmas Extravagance of the Knickerbocker Family: $400 pays for Mary's little doll; $500 for Johnny's little engine and cars; Mama's new lace coat costs $12,000 and Papa gets a $27,000 motor car. Ada Patterson's article in the December Broadway gives all the other details—and you want to read them.

Sky-scrapers of To-day and To-morrow. Will the modern Jack-in-beanstalks never cease to climb? Asa Steele tells of coming 1000-foot structures beyond which the builder of to-morrow cannot ascend.

Religion in American Art. By Florence Finch Kelly—is a most appropriate Christmas feature. An intelligent study, with superlatively good reproductions of famous sacred pictures by celebrated American painters, among them John La Farge, Ella Conde Lamb, Horatio Walker, C. C. Coleman, J. Wells Champney, E. Irving, Elliot Daingerfield, Edwin Blashfield.

Other Art Features include pictures in color, a total of one hundred and sixty illustrations in this number. A splendid article on an interesting phase of New York Society. The brightest stage news and comment and pictures published anywhere. John Kendrick Bangs' genuinely funny "Idiot on Broadway."

The Brigthest Fiction You'll Find in any Magazine: Nine splendid stories of a new kind—the type of story brought into existence by the new Broadway Magazine—written by George Randolph Chester, Eleanor Hoyt Brainerd, Charles Hanson Towne, Forrest Halsey, Earl Derr Biggers, Helen M. SMALL BANKRUPTCY CASES

Four Petitions Filed in the Federal Court.

Four petitions in bankruptcy were filed yesterday in the federal court, one from an Atlanta drug firm and three from residents of Cobb county, one of these from Marietta, another from near Marietta, and the third from Roswell.

The sum total of the liabilities in the four is given as $3,623.15; in two instances there are assets and two possess nothing.

The petition of the local drug firm was filed by Miss Olive Laing, and was voluntary on the part of Miss Laing, but not her partner, Miss Emma Billingsly, both of whom own the North Side Drug Company. It is asked that Miss Billingsly be declared bankrupt also. The liabilities are $2,212.15, and the assets, $1,050.

A Prime Factor In Business

BUSINESS MEN FIND a banking account absolutely necessary to the proper transaction of their business accounts.

Besides affording the greatest convenience, and assuring dispatch in the transfer of moneys, accounts paid by check insure the payer against any possible loss or wrong payment, and when canceled, is the best receipt to be had.

But in addition to the necessity of a bank account, there are many ways in which a bank account can further the interests of any business.

That we carry the accounts of many leading business concerns in this section, attests the many accommodations it is in our power to afford them. We can do as much for you.

AFTER FIERCE ACTION 'RINGERS" GET TO REST

Two several days of fierce action, the Georgia matter will be shelved for a while unless from some source the charges are proved or disproved. In the first event the Red and Black would be absolved and in the second she would get it in the neet in the exact spot in which rPofessor Holmes has dug.

It did not take such a long time for what has happened to come about. There was some underground talk which was finally brought to the surface in G. Rice's charges; Coach Whitney's departure from Athens; the suspension of the Georgia team, and the orders to Clemson and Auburn to cancel their games. That was all there was to it, but the succession of events toward the last was so rapid that it fairly took one's breath away.

Professor Sanford made the statement for Georgia and it was a defense of the team, a denial of all the arraignments.

Now it is up to the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association to act. At the next meeting Georgia will be exonerated or blacklisted.

The whole affair is to be regretted. Southern athletics have not had such a stain put upon them in years, but it is but just that if there are guilty parties they should be punished. It will hurt for a while but in the long run it will be best, for a college will hardly let the same snake bite it twice, although some seem to be inclined that way. But they have always waited a while and after the storm comes a lull in which athletics will be as pure as the driven snow.

It is painful to see Georgia in the throes of such hard lines, but if she has done wrong, and the evidence points that way, the medicine should be taken without a murmur, as doubtless it will.

The blow of the Georgia suspension was rather hard on Atlanta, for the college has such a large following in this city, and then the fact that it caused the kiboshing of the game scheduled between the Red and Black for Saturday got next to those who were not Red and Black supporters, but lovers of a clean, football contest. Some were so anxious to see a game that they wanted to do something toward getting up a game between Clemson and some other team, to take the place of the canceled game, but it was too late in the week to do that. And anyway, all of the teams already had engagements. Sewanee canceled her game with the S. Y. P. U., but the Tigers could hardly be induced to come to Atlanta again this season.

And for the first Saturday of the season the Atlanta enthusiasts will be deprived of witnessing a contest.

There is no doubt but that the two teams would have played a great game, for they seem to be pretty well matched and both determined to land the decision.

And a bona fide Georgia team would have been on the field, no doubt. With the Tech game vanished the players who didn't look good and real students have been at work since, and the bunch was playing great football.

To judge from the dope the squad was doing better than the one that played Tech in Atlanta. In the Sewanee game their form was great and the team that appeared here, even with the additional practice, could hardly have cut loose a better contest. It must have been that the members of the team had more spirit as a real Georgia team and with this possession were fighting hard to uphold the college football standard.

Mercer Forms Tennis Club.

Macon, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—The tennis players of Mercer university have made some movements toward organizing a tennis association. A meeting was called today by Professor G. W. Macon of the tennis players in college and a nominating committee was appointed to suggest the officers. There are several players at Mercer, and a championship series will be arranged, which will create much interest among the players. Mercer will engage in several tournaments with the other leading colleges of the state next spring.

PLAYERS TAKING RISK PLAYING OUTLAW BALL

Information coming from the Pacific coast is to effect that Joe Bills is jeopardizing his chances for future work in organized baseballdom by playing with the California League, which is an organization "not recognized" by the baseball trust and upon which has recently been placed the "black hand" of the trust, which would bar Bills from playing with the Philadelphia Americans next year, to which club he was sold by the Memphil of 1907.

Bills left Memphis soon after the baseball season ended. He was bent on studying pharmacy at University of Illinois, but after investigating, he found it required too many years of his life to get a diploma, and has decided to take up another profession to cling to after his diamond days. Meantime he is earning money, it is said, in the California League, in which it is also reported that Hal Chase, Elmer Stricklett, Harry McIntire and other prominent major leaguers are playing under assumed names.

Jevne Defeats Lean.

St. Louis, November 15.—Lloyd Jevne, of Chicago, defeated Horace B. Lean, of St. Louis, handily in today's game for the three-cushion billiard championship tournament, now in progress. The score was 50 to 44.

Jevne's high run was 4, his average .57, safeties 11; Lean's high run was 4, his average .50, and safeties 17.

New Fire Insurance Company.

Columbia, S. C., November 15.—(Special.)—The Fidelity Securities Company is the name of a local fire insurance concern, for which a charter was applied for yesterday. The company is capitalized at $300,000. Comptroller A. W. Jones, who is the prime mover of the concern, will be its president. He has secured the backing of many leading business men of the state.

THOUSANDS ARE GATHERING

Great Interest Felt in the Princeton-Yale Football Game.

New Haven, Conn., November 15.—Thousands of followers of the colors of Yale and Princeton are here tonight for the game which will award football honors to one of the other university tomorrow. Hotels, clubs, fraternal halls and dormitories were thrown open to the visiting classmen and graduates today, and every train from east and west brought its quota of enthusiasts, followers of the Blue of Yale or the Orange and Black of Princeton. On every side the college flags were strung and tonight squads of cheering partisans paraded the city's streets. Practically every ticket for the field was taken before night and the Yale stands will hold a record-breaking crowd tomorrow.

Coaches on both sides were confident tonight. Yale was a slight favorite in the wagers, 7 to 5 being offered on her chances. The Blue eleven had signal practice today, but no hard work.

Princeton's men are at Norfolk, Conn., and will make the journey to New Haven tomorrow. The men are in excellent condition and had light practice today.

The probable line-up for tomorrow is as follows:

YALE.	Position.	PRINCETON.
H. Jones	left end	Wister
Page	left tackle	Buckingham
Cooney	left guard	Waller
Congdon	center	Phillips
Goebel	right guard	MacFadyn
Biglow (captain)	right tackle	Booth
Alcott	right end	Brown
T. Jones	quarterback	Dillon
Bomar	right halfback	Tibbets
Brides	left halfback	Harlan
Coy	fullback	McCormick (capt.)

HOLMES IS CONDEMNED BY GEORGIA FOR ACTION

Athens, Ga., November 15.—(Special.) Athens and university circles are stirred considerably over the football situation. The general expression of opinion is condemnatory of Professor Holmes for suspending Georgia from the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association. It is believed here that he acted at the wrong time, if he was to act at all, at a time when Georgia was on the eve of a game with Clemson. It is also the belief of the people here that his action was without warrant. Incidental to all this stir, a letter in the possession of Chancellor Barrow from Mr. Ingram, of the Bell Telephone Company, in Atlanta, sheds some interesting light on matters.

In this letter Mr. Ingram tells of meeting up with three young men on a Pullman going north after the Tech game, and how two of them stated that they had played on the Georgia team for $150 each. Mr. Ingram says that the third told him, while in the smoker on that car, that he had played on the Tech team under the names of Roberts and Hightower. He said his name was Robertson, and that he was a tobacco drummer in Winston-Salem, N. C.

To show the vigilance of the university faculty in the matter, and the desire on the part of Chancellor Barrow and the entire faculty that no one but bona fide students should play on the Georgia team, on October 30, a few days before the game with Tech in Atlanta, Dean Snelling, with the approval of Chancellor Barrow, went to Atlanta and had a conversation with President Matheson, of Tech, in regard to the game that was soon to be played. Dean Snelling told Dr. Matheson that he had heard a great deal in the way of rumor about men on the Tech team being ineligible, and that he had also heard much about players on the Georgia team being ineligible. He told him that the university authorities had no evidence to show that any player was other than a bona fide student, though rumors had been circulated against them. In order to insure against any one playing who was not a bona fide student, Dean Snelling proposed to Dr. Matheson that the one-year rule be adopted for the game, and that no student should be allowed to play on either team who had not been in college for the full term preceding the present term, and who had not attended classes for eight months during that term.

This proposition was made in order that it might be absolutely certain that no "ringer" would be on either team. Dr. Matheson replied that if such were done it would probably cause trouble with other teams with which Tech and Georgia had games this season, that these teams might not agree to the one-year rule, and that the Tech and Georgia teams would then have to play the full teams, and lay the management open to the charge of having declined to play men under suspicion in one game and playing them in another.

Dean Snelling then proposed that the game be called off, and Dr. Matheson replied that this could not be considered, as it was too short a time before the game, and that the public had rights which must be respected.

These two propositions having been declined by the president of the School of Technology and the faculty, and athletic management having no evidence to suspend the players against whom charges had been made, there was nothing left but to let the game proceed as scheduled. Under the one-year rule the Georgia team would have lost more players than the Tech team. It has been definitely decided that the game with Clemson in Atlanta tomorrow will not be played.

The football of the day frosts Atlanta. For a while the enthusiasts anticipated with delight the Clemson-Georgia game that was to be, but Professor Holmes delivered the farewell punch to that Thursday when he suspended Georgia and ordered Clemson to cancel the battle here. He settled the Georgia team and Atlanta football for the day and those who had looked forward to witnessing a contest are draining the dregs of disappointment.

The situation leaves us with the Tech conflict many miles away as the nearest bunch of interest, and that will have to suffice.

Tech is in good trim for the battle, and the outlook is rosy for a good showing, say the local crew. Coach Heisman says he will be satisfied if Vandy goes no stronger than a 30 to 0 count, and he may depart from Nashville wreathed in satisfaction—anyway, he has a chance.

Although the odds heavily favor Auburn, there is a great deal of interest in the all-Alabama contest in Birmingham between the University team and the Auburnites. Had Georgia been good the battle would have thrown a little light on the Auburn-Red and Black Thanksgiving struggle, but there's nothing to it now. It looks very much like 1907 will pass without the big game between the two teams on Thanksgiving day, the first break in many years. But it had to end some time, as all things do.

Gordon should give Mercer a good run; North Carolina should trim Richmond, and the Mississippi-Louisiana State game promises to be a real contest.

Georgetown seems to be pretty easy for any of them this season and it looks like a Virginia victory in Washington today. And Davidson will hand something to A. & M. if she continues in her old stride.

Memphis actually gets a game in the Tennessee-Mississippi A. & M. combat, which will go to the Tennesseans.

One big game in the other part of the country is the Michigan-Penn affair at Ann Arbor, where both teams will make a great fight for the decision.

The Yale-Princeton game will not be bad and the Indians will take something from Minnesota.

Two Local Elevens Will Battle Today

The Royal Insurance team and the eleven from the Boys' High school will meet at Piedmont park this afternoon in what promises to be a good game.

Both teams have practiced hard for the battle, and have had enough experience this season to warrant them playing real football. The contest will start at 3:30 o'clock.

It will be a fast game from start to finish, as there is quite a good deal of rivalry between the two teams. At the beginning of the season the Royals, in a practice game, beat the Boys' High School, 5 to 0. The High School boys are determined to get revenge, and wape the defeat out, while the Royals hope to beat them by a larger score than before.

As in all probability this will be the only game in town, a large crowd is expected to turn out. The teams are rather evenly matched, and both play fast ball. A small admission fee will be charged to cover expenses. There will be good street car service. The game begins at 3 o'clock sharp.

MICHIGAN DANGEROUS; YALE SHOUD GET GAME

Wolverines Have Shown Better Form and More Strength and Aggressiveness Than Penn.—Yale-Princeton Game Will Be Closer.

By SOL METZGER.

Philadelphia, November 15.—(Special.) Two of the most important games of the present football season will be played this afternoon, when Pennsylvania meets the Michigan eleven at Ann Arbor, and Yale plays Princeton at New Haven, and seldom has it been so hard to favor any of the teams in these contests. The Pennsylvania-Michigan affair will bring together about the best set of players the Quakers have ever possessed with a famous Yost machine, undeniably strong, fast and heavy; whereas in the east Yale and Princeton will fight it out by using different tactics to a great extent, the Blue favoring the old-style game, owing to the wonderful men she has in her back field, while Princeton will be most apt to play forward passes and on-side kicks from first to last. The two games will certainly afford a great test in new football, for never have the four big rivals been so closely matched.

At Ann Arbor it will truly be a battle of the giants. Michigan's tremendous line will outweigh the Pennsylvania line six or seven pounds to the man, but the Quaker back field will undoubtably equalize matters by possessing just about that much additional weight over the Michigan back field. Naturally the tendency of the two teams will be to play a line-plunging game, yet both realize the power in the forwards of the other, and that to win out it will be necessary to resort to all the strategy within its power. Neither team has up till this time exhibited anything startling in the way of forward passes and on-side kicks, as both have held their ideas upon these points in check, preferring to spring them today. In punting Hollenbach, of Pennsylvania, should have a little the better of the proposition, as he has ranked especially well in this department of the game this fall.

Dangerous Is Michigan.

It has been a difficult matter to obtain a line on the two elevens by means of comparative scores, as they have not met any teams in common, so that the choice of a winner lies entirely on a comparative basis with this year's work and last year's. Michigan has shown much better form and more strength and aggressiveness all this season, and her attack has been more versatile than it was a year ago. She has also proven she is a dangerous foe, once in the enemy's ground, by reason of the place-kicking ability of "Octy" Graham, her sterling guard, and this form of scoring has proven one of the big factors in many games this year. This season Yost has tended to get away from the western idea of building up an offense around one man, as was the case with his 1906 eleven, which team depended entirely upon Garrels to carry the ball, do the kicking and forward passing. Pennsylvania had but to watch Garrels last year to stop Michigan in all her plays, but this season she will meet a more versatile attack and one in which Magoffin, Allerdice, Loell and Watkins will be equally strong, with men like Reinschild and Hamuond to be used in carrying the ball from the line positions. So far Yost has shown few of his forward passes, but there can be little doubt of his having instructed his team in this style of play to the best of his ability.

Michigan will be handicapped in not having met teams that have used the new football to any extent this fall, whereas Pennsylvania has been greatly benefited by the defeat she had administered to her by the Carlisle Indians. In this game the Quakers learned much of the forward pass, and the result was she has built up a defense to meet it as it is played in the east. This game and subsequent ones also taught the Quakers much in the way of handling it, and the eleven has now more confidence in itself in this department than at any time last year of this. In a line-smashing game and in end-running, with Hollenbach carrying the ball, the Quakers should have somewhat the better of the argument, providing her back-field interferes as it has not done this year. There have been more victories won by the individual playing of members of this year's Red and Blue eleven than by teamwork. If Penn has teamwork today and the same dash and spirit she showed against State College, she should win, in spite of her weakness at quarterback. In this all-important position she will probably start Keinath, a new man at this sort of work, and no matter how studious he has been in the past two weeks in mastering its intricacies or how hard he plays today, his newness in the place will handicap Penn. Lawrence, Penn's quarterback last season, was in much the same position, and his wonderful game undoubtedly had much to do with Penn's victory.

On the form of the two elevens to date and providing Penn's eleven gets together with some of the traditional spirit and fighting qualities that have been hers in the past, Pennsylvania should win the game. It will depend upon the mental attitude of the Quaker eleven, as the individuals have more power than any set of men that have represented the Red and Blue in the past ten years, and should that power be concentrated today Michigan will have to play a most brilliant and wonderful game to beat it.

Yale-Princeton.

The Yale-Princeton game is likely to be a closer one than the Michigan-Pennsylvania affair, as the two teams appear to be of almost equal strength, with the odds slightly in favor of Yale, because the game is to be played on her own grounds, and because she has but recently struck her pace; whereas Princeton has slightly slumped since her wonderful game against the Carlisle Indians. Princeton naturally reached her best form earlier than Yale, and a comparison of the two elevens in games with other teams shows this. Princeton submerged Washington and Jefferson, whereas Washington and Jefferson played Yale to a standstill in the first half and was only defeated 11 to 6 in the second. Against the Indians two weeks ago Princeton was in rare form, as good as she will reach today; but last Saturday she was slower against Amherst, whereas Yale struck her twue pace and gave Brown the worst beating the Providence lads have had this season, in a truly remarkable game.

In punting, Coy, of Yale, will match well with Harlan, of Princeton, and in open field work the two elevens are about equal. Dillon, of the Tigers, is somewhat a better general than Jones, of Yale, and their individual playing ability is about the same. McCormick will be the best line plunger on the field, though Coy and Brides are but a pace behind him, and at this game Yale should have the best of it by reason of the weight and strength she has in her back field. In new football Princeton will have more confidence in herself than Yale, having depended upon it to such a great extent this season, and Wister and Brown look better able to take forward passes than the Yale ends. Wister, too, has some ability as a line smasher, and will be used to that end. In drop kicking Princeton has by far the best of it with Harlan in the game, a clever man at this art. Yale, however, hopes to defeat Princeton's forward passes by a special system of defense, and she believes her line can prevent Princeton piercing it to any extent. She then will attempt to bang out a victory along the lines of old football, depending to a little extent on forward passes. Yale has slightly the best of the argument.

BIG AUTOMOBILE RACES.

Tatham, of New York, Signs Agreement—Expects 35 Cars.

Savannah, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—C. Wood Tatham, of New York, today signed the agreement for the great races to be held in this city in January, and left for New York, where he goes to advertise the fact that the races will be held and to promote the attendance.

Tatham guarantees and is understood to make good the guarantee, that he will bring at least 15 cars to enter the stock car races, representing at least eight managers. He expects that there will be easily 35 cars. There will be other races, too, to take up three days of the meeting, and it is expected that outside of Daytona and Ormond Beach, no such automobile assembly will ever have been held in the south. An excellent course, ten miles around, has been settled upon.

STUDENTS PRAY FOR SUCCESS OF TEAM.

Richmond, Va., November 15.—For the first time in the history of any college, so far as known, prayer was offered up yesterday by the students, of Earlham college, for the success of the Earlham football team tomorrow. In consequence every player is going to do his best to demonstrate the efficiency of the application. Earlham college is conducted under the auspices of the Quakers. The opponents of the Earlham men, a team from Depauw university, are expected to rely solely on brute strength and common gray matter.

NOTHING DOING, STATES RIGGS

Sanford and Riggs Called Game Off Yesterday.

Appeal Will Be Made to the S. I. A. A. to Allow Georgia to Play the Rest of the Schedule. May Play Clemson Next Week.

Professor Riggs, of Clemson, and Professor Sanford, of Georgia, met in Atlanta yesterday for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not some lawful arrangement could be made whereby the Georgia-Clemson game might be played today, but after thoroughly investigating the matter both decided that nothing could be done in so short a time, and the battle is officially off.

However, an appeal will be made to the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, and the representatives of both colleges are hopeful that the ban may be lifted from Georgia, so that the game can occur in Atlanta next week. With this end in view, it is very probable that Professor Sanford will go to Nashville to state the case before Dr. Dudley, of the association, and that a representative will be sent to see Professor Holmes, in Macon, it being the idea, if possible, to lift the Georgia suspension for the rest of the season, so that the remaining games of the schelule may be played.

Riggs Wants to Play.

Said Professor Riggs last night:

"Clemson and Auburn are are hurt pretty badly by the Georgia suspension, as it cuts both out of two big championship games, and I think it would be better for all concerned if Georgia were allowed to finish her schedule. It injures the teams financially, as well as in the way of the loss of the games.

"However, Clemson cannot afford to be otherwise than loyal to the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, and will not play Georgia until she can do so without breaking the rules of the association. And I think that Auburn will abide by the orders also. But I think it would be best to let Georgia play until the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association makes a decision."

Professor Riggs stated that he wired the Clemson team not to leave home, and Professor Sanford notified the Georgia team to remain in Athens, as the game was off.

In case the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association sees fit to allow Georgia to play, Clemson will meet her on the local battle-ground next week.

FAIR TRIAL FOR GEORGIA, SAYS PROFESSOR HOLMES

Corstitution Bureau, Brown House, Macon, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—President W. L. Dudley, of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, communicated with Professor E. T. Holmes at Mercer today, confirming the action of the latter in suspending the University of Georgia as a member of the athletic association. It will be the purpose of the officials to suspend only till a satisfactory explanation of matters has been made at the university. If that explanation is not made, then it is not certain that the institution will in any short time be reinstated.

Professor Holmes has taken the matter up with a view of giving Georgia a fair and impartial hearing, and he will, as a representative of the association, be required to stand between the accused players and the S. I. A. A. No statement has been made here today regarding when the matter will be taken up. Professor Holmes and the athletic authorities at the university will have an early conference, and the further course will then be made known.

Georgia's game with Auburn, in Macon, Thanksgiving day has for several seasons proven a drawing card, and the loss of this contest will be disappointing to this community as well as to the players and the faculty and student body at the university. The indications are now that there will be no opportunity to clear up the affair in time for the game this season, and Georgia will also lose her game with Clemson.

Texas University Wins.

Austin, Tex., November 15.—Texas university won from Oklahoma university this afternoon at football by a score of 29 to 10. The Oklahoma team kept the ball in Texas territory during a large part of the game, and were a number of times within striking distance of the goal. Their only touchdown, however, was made on a fumble. Radcliffe followed this by a goal from the field.

Mercer Ready for Gordon.

Macon, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—Mercer university and Gordon institute will meet on the gridiron at Central City park tomorrow afternoon. The Mercer squad has gone through some hard practice for the past few days as preparatory for this contest, and there will be plenty to do. Gordon has a strong bunch and the supporters of that institution have a notion that the "preps" will come out victorious. Coach Schenker feels that the Mercerians should easily add another victory to their list. All the Mercer 'varsity men are in good condition and all of the mainstays will be in the game. It is assured that a lively contest will occur tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock.

The senior and junior classes of Mercer each had an enthusiastic class meeting this morning, and decided on displaying some class spirit by taken a band wagon ride to the Mercer-Gordon game. Each class will have the colors flying high, and the upper classmen will do the rooting.

LARGE CROWDS ATTEND.

Southwest Georgia Colored Conference Still in Session.

Americus, Ga., November 15.—(Special.) The Southwest Georgia annual conference of the African Methodist Episcopal church is handling large crowds and attracting great attention. When the devotional services were conducted yesterday the presiding elders' reports were made. Eight thousand, six hundred and fifty dollars have been collected of presiding elders; $19,860 for pastors, $800 for the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society, $580 for contingencies.

The election of delegates to the general conference was one of the most interesting ever held in this section, and resulted as follows: Edward W. Lee, of Americus; W. D. Johnson, of Thomasville; F. R. Sims, of Americus; J. T. Hall, Columbus; I. G. Glass, Talbotton; C. J. Jones, Columbus; S. D. Roseborough, Cuthbert; John Cooper, Columbus; G. W. Smith, Albany; Wright Newman, Macon; P. W. Greathart, Americus, and J. B. Lofton.

Fifteen hundred persons listened to a pungent speech from Thomas Blodgett here yesterday on the disfranchisement of the negro in Georgia.

The characters of pastors and presiding elders were put on passage today. All passed except two or three for minor offenses.

Revs. H. P. Andrews, Gardner Williams, Wiley Mack, Hayes Williams and Samuel George were reported to the conference as having died this year.

THEATERS.

At the Grand.

There was a small audience present at the Grand last evening to see the play "Under Southern Skies," and there was a smaller one when the curtain went down on the final act, for the majorty of those in the audience could find no pleasure in even the suggestion that the heroine of the play should be tainted by negro blood, and around that misconception the action of Lottie Blair Parker's drama centers.

It is a simple, simple plot. That of two men who wish to marry a girl, and the one she does not love forcing her to promise to marry him by leading her to believe that she is tainted by negro blood, her fear of the shame such a disclosure would cause her, her father, and her friends being the compelling forces in her consent.

In this suggestion the playwright, an Eastern woman, has shown her painful ignorance of southern conditions, and southern characters. It is utterly preposterous to suppose that any white girl would ever believe, no matter how great the proof that her mother was not white. Be her station high or low, she would indignantly spurn the idea, and accept any other charge in preference. It is out of all reason that she should jump at the conclusion that there was negro blood in her veins.

Of course in the end the truth is revealed, the mother of the girl, who had ruined her name and life, coming back home and interrupting the wedding ceremony before it was too late.

But the idea is repugnant, and it is hard for Atlantans to believe that even in far away Louisiana, where the play is located, that men by birth gentlemen could be so forgetful of honor, that any girl, reared as white would even consider the possibility of miscegenation in her birth, and that the other principals in the play, men and women, could ever possibly in real life be so stilted, so unnatural, so awkward in their movements and expressions.

Probably the best of the acting was that of John Burke, as Major Edward Crofton, the father, and the wronged husband. Uncle Joshaway and Aunt Dosher were good in their parts, and the specialties were fine.

Matinee and night performance today.

ROBERT MORAN.

"The Grand Mogul."

Frank Pixley and Gustav Luders' new musical comedy, "The Grand Mogul," which has been given a most elaborate production by Klaw & Erlanger and which scored an immense success at the Colonial theater in Chicago last season and duplicated the triumph in New York, will be seen at the Grand Monday and Tuesday next for three performances.

This musical comedy has far eclipsed the great success made by these clever authors in their previous best work, "The Prince of Pilsen," in the merit and humor of the story, interest of lyrics and brilliancy of music. The musical score is without doubt the best that Mr. Luders has ever written.

"Brown of Harvard."

"Brown of Harvard," with Henry Woodruff in the stellar role and a supporting company of America's most capable young actors and actresses, will hold the boards at the Grand on Wednesday and Thursday next.

In view of the fact that this college play from the pen of Rida Johnson Young, who also wrote "Glorious Betsy" and "The Boys of Company B," is being offered by Henry Miller, the eminent actor-manager, it should prove the theatrical event of the local season.

At the Orpheum.

Every school pupil in Atlanta is invited to the Orpheum matinee this afternoon, where they will be admitted free if accompanied by a member of the family with one paid ticket. The rule will apply to matinees every day in the week until the holiday season.

Much interest is being shown in the guessing contest, which closes tonight. The three persons who guess nearest to the total attendance for the week will receive handsome prizes at the performance tonight. The one hundredth performance of vaudeville at the Orpheum will be celebrated Monday night, when handsome souvenirs will be given to every lady present. The bill this week has been a winner, and for the coming week some splendid feature acts are offered.

At the Bijou.

Instead of ballets there will be a profusion of "musical numbers," as exemplified in the modern musical comedy in "The Black Crook," which is to be presented at the Bijou next week.

Messrs. Miller and Plohn in reviving the old spectacle have seen fit to make this innovation, and while there may be some doubt to the lay mind as to the wisdom of their course in thus destroying tradition, they seem to feel sure of their position. They have provided an exceptionally large company for the presentation of the "Crook" this season.

TECH TEAM IN FINE FETTLE

By J. W. HEISMAN.

Nashville, Tenn., November 15.—(Special.)—The Tech football team arrived in Nashville this morning, and is stopping at the Tulane hotel. All of the members of the team are in excellent shape, and prospects are fine for a good showing.

The team spent an hour and a half work out at Dudley field this morning, punting, catching the ball and signal drill.

Great interest is being manifested in the game by local enthusiasts. The weather is clear, and the field is in good condition. Prospects are excellent for a large attendance.

Fully 800 Horses Are Now on the Grounds—The Bookmakers Will Move From Pillar to Post. List of the Entries for Today.

Washington, November 15.—With the track of the Washington Jockey Club in the best of condition, with entries from stables whose total of 800 horses have overtaxed the stall accommodations of the grounds, and under conditions which augur well for the success of the meeting, autumn racing on the Benninge course will be ushered in tomorrow. COTTON EASIER ALL THE SESSION

Closed at Net Decline of Four to Fifteen Points.

Disappointing Cables Caused a Decline of 3 to 5 Points at Opening, and There Was No Tendency to Rally of Any Consequence.

New York, November 15.—The cotton market was easier today, closing at a net decline of 4 to 15 points on all months except November, which was net unchanged. Sales were estimated at 175,000 bales. The market opened steady at a decline of 3@5 points in response to disappointing cables, and, while there seemed to be some support at first, there was no rally of consequence and the general tendency was downward, the lowest point being reached in the afternoon when January sold at 9.92 and March at 10.01, or 18 points net lower. Unfavorable trade reports and weakness in Wall street seemed to be the main bearish factors, for there was no sign of weakness on the part of the December bull pool, and while a rumor was circulated in the afternoon that loans had been called on cotton in the local stock, this was promptly denied, and nothing developed in the later trading to indicate such a condition. Most of the private wires from the south reported steadiness on the part of holders, and there seems to be some demand for spot cotton for November shipment and possibly for delivery on December contract here, which is a sustaining factor for the time being. Most of the private cables from Liverpool express a favorable opinion of the market, notwithstanding the lower quotations received from there, but one cable received late in the day stated that Oldham masters were refusing to advance wages, and that there was every possibility of a strike in Lancashire. Other cables said that no strike was probable.

Receipts at the ports today, 58,019 bales, against 65,545 last week and 67,472 last year. For the week 360,000, against 363,976 last week and 413,341 last year. Today's receipts at Houston 10,168, against 19,331 last year.

New Orleans Cotton.

New Orleans, November 15.—Cotton spots were quiet, ⅛ lower on all grades. Middling 10¾. Sales were 2,100 bales on the spot and 950 to arrive. Futures opened steady, 4 to 7 points below the close yesterday as a result of unfavorable advices from Liverpool. Fairly good support was given shortly after the opening on the absence of offerings in the local market, and brought about a slight advance. Later, when the volume of offerings caused a slackening of the spot demand, futures eased off, but were steady at the decline. In the late session the small demand for spots continued in evidence, and futures were somewhat neglected in consequence. At the close, which was steady, the active months ranged from 17 to 21 points below the close yesterday.

Liverpool Cotton.

Liverpool, November 15.—Closing: Cotton, [illegible] points lower; American middling fald at 6.43; good middling 6.07; middling 5.87; low middling 5.45; good ordinary 5.11; ordinary 4.81. The sales of the day were 8,000 bales, of which 500 were for speculation and export and included 6,700 American. Receipts 8,500 bales, all American. Futures opened steady and closed barely steady:

Hubbard Bros. & Co.

New York, November 15.—With the weakness in Wall street and the decline in Liverpool our market has been weak from the opening. It was felt by the trade that the light movement was due entirely to the congested financial condition throughout the south, and that the probabilities are that when the congestion was over the movement would rapidly increase. This temper of the trade was increased by the weakness in the stock market, so that the market was practically without support. On the decline the shorts in December were covering, but there was little covering after the opening hour in the distance deliveries, as the sentiment was universally bearish.

London Stock Market.

London, November 15.—American securities opened dull and heavy today, Union Pacific and Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul were supported and advanced slightly, but the rest of the list eased off and at noon prices generally were ¼ to a point below yesterday's New York closing. Receipts of New York market opening steadied prices for a time, but resumed selling caused a reaction. The close was weak. Americans closed as follows:

ALL GRAIN OFF AT THE CLOSE

Wheat Showed Decline of Two Cents from High Point

Market Opened Weak on Account of Fresh Slump in Stocks and News Favorable to Bears—Corn Was Weak and Dropped More Than a Cent.

Chicago, November 15.—Wheat prices on the local exchange declined 2c today from the high point, because of selling based on the financial situation. The December delivery closed 2⅝@2¾c lower. Corn was off 1⅜@1⅝. Oats were ½c lower. Provisions were down 5c to 10c.

The wheat market opened weak, because of the fresh slump in stocks, and became weaker as trading progressed. News of the day was generally favorable to the bears. Foreign grain markets closed weak, and prices throughout this country were easy all day. There was not sufficient news of a bullish character to create much demand, and the volume of trade was very small. Bradstreet's reports showing exports of 6,192,000 bushels of wheat and flour for the week, caused some buying by shorts late in the day. The market closed weak. December opened a shade to ⅜@½ lower at 95¼ to 95⅝, declined to 93⅝, and closed at 94¼@¾c. May sold between $1.01⅞ and $1.03⅝, and closed at $1.02⅝@1.02½. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 305,200 bushels. Primary receipts were 617,000 bushels, against 911,000 bushels on the same day last year. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 447 cars, against 467 cars last week, and 618 cars one year ago.

The corn market was weak all day, and prices declines more than 1c from the high point because of the cold weather in the northwest, the break in wheat and the unsettled financial situation. Many reports were received telling of the poor condition of the new crop, but they received but little attention. The market closed weak. December opened ⅝c to ¾c lower at 55 to 55⅛c, sold up to 55½c, and then declined to 54⅛c. The close was at 54⅝@54¾c. Local receipts were 86 cars, with 9 contract grade.

The trade in oats was light, and prices were weak because of the decline in wheat and corn. December oats opened ⅛c lower at 46¼c, sold between 46¼c and 47⅛c, and closed at 46⅞c. Local receipts were 130 cars.

Several of the leading packers were sellers of provisions, and as a result th emarket was weak throughout the session. A decline of 5@10c in the price of live hogs had a depressing effect. At the close January pork was down 20c at $12.80. Lard was 5@7½c lower at $8.00@8.02½. Ribs were 20c lower at $6.87½.

Estimated receipts for tomorrow: Wheat, 17 cars; corn, 118 cars; oats, 102 cars; hogs, 12,000 head.

$75 POSITIONS PLENTIFUL AT THE SOUTHERN SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS UNIVERSITY

THE POPULAR BUSINESS SCHOOL IS OVERRUN WITH APPLICATIONS.

Positions, positions, positions!

The like has never been known.

Where? do you ask.

Everywhere, but not to everybody; only those who are well prepared to fill them.

And thereby "hangs a tale."

It is a well known fact that the business world has realized that the most thoroughly equipped bookkeepers and stenographers and telegraph operators are turned out by the Southern Shorthand and Business University and the Atlanta School of Telegraphy, of this city, and it is due to this fact that the business men apply to these popular schools when they want office help.

The Southern absolutely cannot supply one-half of the applications it receives for clerical help.

One day this week seven applications were received; among them two of the places paid $75 per month at the start; one paid $65; one $60, and the others from $40 to $50.

One of the largest concerns in Valdosta wrote this way: "We could not make it with the young man you referred us to, so please put another on the string. We will start him at $75."

"Are you from the Southern?" asked a firm in the city of an applicant for a position. "I want a graduate of the Southern, because its students can READ THEIR NOTES."

Several entered the big school this week, and if you want a job you should do likewise. It will be money in your pocket in the "long run." Don't wait until after Christmas; begin now, and then soon after Christmas you would be a stenographer, or bookkeeper, or telegraph operator, and holding a "fat job." Don't enter anywhere until you have asked the business men "How about it?"

SKIES BRIGHTER, SAY THE REPORTS

Mercantile Agencies Optimistic as to Situation.

Receipts of Gold and Increase of Bank Note Circulation Will Relieve Financial Affairs—Return to Normal Conditions Hastening.

New York, November 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade tomorrow will say that liberal receipts of gold from abroad and large increase in bank note circulation tend to relieve the financial stress at New York, but the interior is now feeling the scarcity of currency and commercial activity is retarded to some extent. Dispatches from leading cities indicate conservatism in preparation for future business and irregularity in collections, with most favorable news from agricultural sections, in which the crops are being marketed as freely as the supply of money will permit. Return to normal conditions will be hastened by large exports of farm staples, supplying credits abroad upon which the much needed gold may be imported. Official returns indicate that exports of this nature were valued at about $100,000,000 in October and the outgo of grain and cotton is on a still larger scale this month. It is particularly fortunate that there was not the customary borrowing abroad this summer, in anticipation of agricultural exports, so that payment is now due for these shipments, whereas usually the remittances are needed to meet maturing bills in the exchange market.

Financial pressure has affected the iron industry, curtailing new contracts for all forms of finished steel. Few new orders have been received by the mills and some deliveries on old contracts are deferred because funds are not available to meet specifications.

Primary markets for cotton goods are quiet, although the mills are all well occupied filling old contracts. Reports of the closing of woolen mis shoud not be given undue significance, more or ess idle machinery being customary at this time of the year.

Footwear factories note a slackening in demand and output is being curtailed to prevent overproduction. Thus far the percentage of reduction is not heavy.

Tanners report a quiet leather market, some concerns receiving more countermands than new business, but the statistical position is strong because production has been curtailed for some time.

What Bradstreet Says.

New York, November 15.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say that trade on the whole is quieter and industrial operations are being curtailed in accord with the readjustment process forced by the prevailing monetary stringency and the spread of the acute currency scarcity to the country at large. Evidence of this are found in the destriction of wholesale buying for future delivery in the confinement of jobbing trade to purely filling-in proportions and in the curtailment of retail buying by the necessary employment of credit instruments. In manufacturing lines there is apparently a determination to fill orders only as the yare received, and an indisposition to accumulate stocks, the result being a slowing down of operations pending the settlement of affairs upon a substantial basis. This industrial quieting is also, in no small degree, due to the fact that manufacturers chose rather to reduce production to a point where operations can be conducted free from dispute as to the methods of payment employed. There are, however, some favorable elements which point to the rehabilitation process being well under way. There is in the first place an absence of anything like precipitate action in the business community, the first flurry of financial unsettlement has appeared without much of the disorganization witnessed in other years, and there has succeeded a steady determination to make the best of a situation which by many is regarded as but temporary and not of a lasting depressing kind.

The situation in the larger financial markets is unquestionably more cheerful; gold arrivals from abroad continue very large, and the security markets display considerable steadiness, despite evident secondary liquidation inseparable from times like these. Urgent demands from the interior early caused an advance of money premium, but later this demand weakened as the needs of the country were met by large shipments from New York and other centers, the arrival of great quantities of foreign gold, the increase of the volume of national bank circulation and the growing familiarity of the people of the interior with the new credit instruments. One especially hopeful sign has been the renewal of grain purchases in the northwest, exchange checks on larger interior markets being the medium of transfer, thus allowing of the resumption of grain forwarding and the buying of supplies at retail by the farmer.
